FALL ORDERED TO JAIL DESPITE HEALTH PLEA

EX-CABINET OFFICER'S APPEAL FAILS

Counsel Seeks Extra Day On Sentence in Order To Give Prison Choice

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, central figure in the celebrated "oil scandals" of the Harding administration, today was ordered to jail for his part in the leasing of naval oil reserve land.

Sentence was ordered by Justice Jennings Bailey, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, despite the claim of Fall's attorneys that he is in serious physical condition on his ranch in New Mexico.

Frank J. Hogan, counsel for Fall, asked that a day be added to Fall's year sentence so that the attorney general would have power to designate which prison the former cabinet officer would be sent to.

MOTION ALLOWED

The court said it would entertain such a motion.

In ordering the sentence carried out, the court said:

"I cannot see that there is any material change in Fall's condition since the previous trial and what I gather from the report of physicians is that it is not the danger of confinement but the danger of imprisonment in a humid climate such as that of Washington, which is to be feared. This is not a case where the defendant is suffering from some illness such as typhoid fever from which he might recover soon. Any suspension in this case would be a protectoral suspension of the sentence ordered by the court."

Fall, who was convicted of accepting a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, for granting leases in the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, California, to the Doheny interests, was fined $100,000 in addition to the sentence.

He was convicted two years ago, but final action on his case was delayed by unsuccessful appeals to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and to the United States Supreme Court.

With Hogan declaring that prison would end his life, an examination by Army physicians at Fort William Beaumont, El Paso, Tex., was ordered late in June.

DOCTORS' DIAGNOSIS

The physicians diagnosed Fall's illness as hardening of the arteries, degeneration of heart muscles, pleurisy, arthritis and inactive pulmonary tuberculosis.

When Atlee Pomerene, special government counsel in the "oil scandal" cases, appeared before Justice Bailey two days ago, he suggested that Fall be confined in jail at El Paso. This suggestion was made because physicians asserted that Fall's tuberculosis would become active if moved to the humid climate of Washington.

While Army physicians made no prediction as to whether Fall could withstand confinement in jail, Hogan presented a report by three Washington physicians, based on the diagnosis. The physicians comprised a board named by the court to examine Fall during his trial two years ago.

All agreed that imprisonment of the 70-year old ex-cabinet officer might shorten his life, and aggravate his illness.

COURT POST UP TO PINCHOT

Gov. Gifford Pinchot probably will have the right to appoint the successor of Superior Court Judge James B. Drew, recently appointed to the Supreme Court bench, it was revealed today.

Judge Drew has not yet been sworn in as a member of the higher court, and accordingly no vacancy exists in the Superior Court. Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, notified the County Elections Bureau. As a result there will be no election for Superior Court judge, it was stated. Drew is expected to resign from the Superior Court after the election.

It has been presumed that because of Judge Drew's appointment to the Supreme Court there would be an election to fill the vacancy in the Superior Court. Certification from the secretary of the commonwealth for the September primaries received here made no provision for the office of Superior Court judge. The set up on the demonstrating voting machines included a place for Superior Court candidates. Gilbert C. Cloonan, head of the Elections Bureau, has ordered the ballot labels destroyed and reprinted.

Gang Shoots 2, One Dead At Sharon

SHARON, Pa., July 11.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania and Ohio police scanned gang war records of a half dozen cities today in an effort to solve the mystery surrounding the slaying of a man and the wounding of another in a field adjoining the Carnegie mill gate at Wheatland, a Sharon suburb, late last night.

Dave Amdrus, 32, of Cleveland, was found dead in the field, just across the Ohio line, a few minutes after Joe Blank, 24, also of Cleveland, staggered, wounded, through the mill gate, calling for assistance. Blank was removed to Buhl Hospital here. Physicians said he had small chance for recovery.

Officers said Blank told them he and Amdrus were hitch-hiking out of Cleveland, en route to Buffalo, N. Y., when they were picked up by several men in an automobile.

Authorities said Amdrus recently was questioned in connection with a gang killing in Cleveland.

A liquor permit issued to Amdrus in Port Stanley, Ont., recently was found in the dead man's coat, police said.

PARIS TERMS INSIST ON 'PACIFISM'

German Government Won't Weaken Defense as Price Of Aid, Berlin Asserts

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 11. — Both President von Hindenburg and the German cabinet will resign rather than cripple Germany's present national defense, in order to obtain an international loan, government spokesmen intimated to International News Service today.

Meanwhile, the "flight of the mark" reached its record peak today when 100,000,000 marks were withdrawn from the exchange account, the highest figure for any day since President Hoover made his debt suspension proposal.

Since Dr. Luther's departure for London and Paris on his urgent mission to raise funds to bolster the Reich's crumbling financial structure, Chancellor Bruening's cabinet has been in almost continuous session.

The chancellor has been having long-distance telephone talks with President von Hindenburg for hours at a time since the crisis began to show signs of coming to a head.

GERMANS INDIGNANT

Government spokesmen pointed out that the aged soldier president considers France's demand that Germany suspend her "vest-pocket cruiser" program as a personal humiliation. The President is at his summer home in East Prussia.

Germans are generally indignant at this suggestion, declaring that one or two small cruisers offer no threat whatever to the big navies of France and England.

If Chancellor Bruening should resign, it would mean probably that the next government would be in control of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalists, and Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists (Fascists). These two fighting Germans recently combined with the powerful Stahlhelm organization in a "national opposition" to the present cabinet's policies.

Meanwhile, the tension with which Germany awaits the outcome of the credit-seeking race took on in wide sections of the Reich the semblance of hysteria.

Woman Lost Four Days, Found in Mexican Hills

SAN YSIDRO, Cal., July 11.—(AP.)—Dazed and disheveled, Mrs. Ruby Trates Mack, 37, concert pianist, was led to her home here yesterday by a little Mexican girl, but the mystery of her four-day disappearance was unexplained.

Mrs. Mack dropped from sight after a party at Agua Caliente, where she had gone with her husband, a race track handicaper, Miss Jerry Laziar and Francis McDonald, Hollywood motion picture actor, last Monday.

Mack notified Constable Jay Swinehart that $3,000 worth of jewelry and $80 in cash his wife had with her when she disappeared, was gone.

The Mexican girl said she found the woman wandering in hills 12 miles south of Tia Juana and that Mrs. Mack could not remember her name, but said she lived near "some little green houses."

Grandson of 'Tiger' Dies, Martyr to Science

The citation for the honor described Dr. Clemenceau as "a victim of science." The grandson of the war-time premier suffered an infection recently while caring for a patient.

Dr. Clemenceau, a promising young surgeon, died at the threshold of his career.

His mother, Mme. Jacquemaire Clemenceau, had added the name Clemenceau to her husband's in memory of her illustrious father, as is often done in France.

AUTO, TROLLEY COLLIDE

Mrs. Anna Steger, 28, and her 2-year-old son, Michael, Jr., and her mother, Mrs. Barbara Evans, 49, of 1151 Ravine street, Munhall, were cut and bruised when their machine was hit by a street car in Ravine street near their home last night.

Hamchak was held on a reckless driving charge, according to police.

CITIZENS SEEK MURREN'S AID

by a gas explosion as "bunk," read to the meeting by Williams, was warmly applauded. Murren also intimated that two arrests were immenent.

Conley attended the meeting and was given an ovation when he arose to speak. He said:

"There was no mistake in the bombing of my home, as someone has remarked. Now I am making the announcement that I have been asked to withdraw from the committee, but I am going to fight harder for the cause. That bomb was placed with the expectation of killing someone, and it shows that the man behind the bombing wanted to commit murder."

BRYAN SCORED

Harry Priddy, one of the executive committee, declared:

"Miles Bryan holds his power through manipulation of the ballot box. He can't elect a candidate honestly and honorably. There is cheating at all times."

C. E. Flanigan, also an executive committee member, was another speaker.

The Citizens' Committee, according to Williams, was formed to protest against increases in taxation. He said that McKees Rocks, with its 18½ mills rate, has the highest tax rate of any borough in the county, and added:

"We are a civic organization, but we have been compelled to make it a political organization. We have put up our own independent slate, but just as soon as our candidates are elected they are automatically out of the citizens' committee as we have to watch all office holders. We are a democratic organization."

Members of the committee yesterday conferred with Capt. Arthur Carlson, of the state police at Greensburg, seeking state police aid in the bombing investigation. It was at his advice that the committee planned today's visit to Murren. Capt. Carlson assured the committee, however, that in the event it was necessary, state police would be detailed to McKees Rocks.

PLANE CRASHES AT AIRPORT

Larry D. Faurot, state inspector of aeronautics, today planned an investigation of the crash of a slotted wing Avian biplane at the Wilkinsburg airport in which the pilot, John McClintock, had a narrow escape last night. E. I. Scroggie, inspector of aeronautics, United States Department of Commerce, said he learned the motor stopped shortly after the plane took off from the field. The motor had been inspected a short time before the crash and found in good working order, he said.

In his investigation today Faurot is expected to attempt to verify reports that McClintock had a passenger.

'PACIFISM' ASKED

PARIS, July 11.—Unless Germany grants political concessions, that country will receive no aid from France in raising a $360,000,000 loan to stave off bankruptcy and possible revolution.

That was the situation in Paris today, as Dr. Hans Luther, president of the German Reichsbank, who came here to enlist French support for the loan, left for Berlin. Dr. Luther spent yesterday conferring with French government officials and financiers. After hearing their views, he decided to postpone his trip to Basle, and return by plane to Berlin to place the French position before the German cabinet.

FRANCE'S TERMS

France's terms for participating in the huge international loan sought by Germany were understood to be as follows:

1. Abandonment of the anschluss, or Austro-German customs union.

2. Suspension of the German naval program.

3. Assurance that Germany will not support any move destined to bring about a reduction in French armaments considered necessary to French security.

Rather than grant such terms, it was reported in Paris today, Chancellor Bruening would resign, which would bring the German crisis to a head, entailing far-reaching consequences from which even France could not escape.

FRANCE NOW WORRIED

Hitherto, the French press has inclined to the view that Germany has been bluffing, but that attitude has now changed. Government officials and newspaper editors are plainly worried over developments, but they wish to lose no opportunity to bolster France's position on the continent at the expense of Germany.

Aside from the danger to France of either Communism or Fascism in Germany, it was recognized here the downfall of the German financial structure would carry with it the ruin of other Central Powers in which France is heavily interested.

MEETS BANK CHIEF

Following his arrival from London, Dr. Luther went into conference with Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France, for three hours yesterday.

At 1 o'clock the two went to a hotel, where they were joined by noted Paris bankers and industrialists. After luncheon Dr. Luther went to the ministry of finance for a conference with M. Flandin. There he spent two hours, and when he left he discovered he had missed his train for Berlin. He then decided to fly to Berlin this morning.

OIL MEN PLAN MEET HERE TO AID TRADE

Delegates From All Parts of Country Called In Effort To Halt Business Slump

Pittsburgh is to be the meeting place of oil operators from all parts of the country who will come here about August 1 to discuss remedies for the depressed state of their industry.

Former Representative Stone, of Oklahoma, announced today that he is making an effort to get representatives of all the leading independent oil producing and importing companies to attend the conference. He declared that he has discussed the proposal with government officials and independent oil companies.

FOLLOWS PRICE CUTS

Stone's action follows drastic price reductions on crude oil produced in Texas and Mid-Continent fields. Many Texas oil producers will be forced to suspend operations.

Last night operators in the Oklahoma City field voted to petition the Governor and the State Corporation Commission to order the shutting down of all producing wells until the market situation justifies a price of $1 a barrel for crude.

Oil men are of the opinion that many of the smaller operators in the southwest will be forced into bankruptcy unless a remedy is found for the present low price situation brought about by excessive production.

APPROVED BY HURLEY

Stone declared that Secretary of War Hurley and Representative Kendall, of Pennsylvania, have approved the plan for the conference in Pittsburgh. Stone also said that he plans to confer with Senators Reed and Davis on Monday.

Local oil operators declared today that they had not been notified of the plan for the conference.

PARTY PROBED IN FIRE DEATH

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—Evidence that a party had been in progress in the Forest Hills home of Mrs. Marion Day Berrien, former Follies actress, less than an hour before the fire which damaged her house broke out, was revealed today by Inspector John J. Gallagher, who is investigating the woman's death.

The information, police said, was obtained from Lewis Gompers, friend of Mrs. Berrien, whose charred body was found in her home yesterday.

The party, police learned, started some time Monday night and lasted until 1:20 o'clock Tuesday. Fire broke out at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Mrs. Berrien was missing at the time and her arrest was ordered by Chief Fire Marshal Brophy, who believed the fire was incendiary.

Inspector Gallagher today said he has yet to question others of Mrs. Berrien's associates and friends before determining whether the fire and death were accidental.

HOOVER FLAYS GRAIN MARKET SPECULATORS

Patriotism of Manipulators Assailed by President; Price Lowest in 30 Years

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP.)—President Hoover has again recognized the plight of wheat growers, this time charging speculators selling short with driving down prices and depriving farmers of their just profits.

With wheat at the lowest levels in 30 years and a heavy movement of the new crop under way, he called upon them to cease their activities until the markets have been revived.

His denunciation yesterday was addressed to a "limited number of speculators" and was not intended to refer to legitimate traders. He said:

"If these gentlemen have that sense of patriotism which outruns immediate profit, and a desire to see the country recover, they will close up these transactions and desist from their manipulations."

WESTERNERS URGE ACTION

Two weeks ago, Hoover, in response to widespread demands that the Farm Board hold the 200,000,000 or more bushels of stabilization wheat off domestic markets in an effort to bolster prices, suggested to the board that, "in view of the unusual conditions growing out of the depression," it define its sales policy more clearly.

Vice President Curtis, Senator Capper, of Kansas, and Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republicans, have sought to impress upon the President the need for relief to farmers, who have witnessed declining prices for more than a year.

Hoover expressed regret he could not under the law expose the names of the short sellers.

BUMPER CROP IN SIGHT

The nation's corn and wheat bins will be filled to overflowing next fall—if the weather holds good.

The Agriculture Department yesterday forecast bumper yields of these crops, but saw a rather moderate production for other farm products. Drought, heat and slight acreage reductions are responsible.

The 1931 corn crop was estimated at 2,976,953,000 bushels, as compared with 2,094,000,000 last year when the drought took heavy toll. The five-year average is 2,761,000,000 bushels.

Drought and heat have dried pastures, reduced milk production and cut into hay prospects. Spring wheat has been adversely affected by lack of moisture; winter wheat, favored by excellent weather, and corn have prospered.

A generous supply of fruit and commercial truck crops was forecast.

Movie Company Sued For Refusing Films

Because of alleged refusal of the Ellwood Theaters, Inc., of Ellwood City, to accept and exhibit motion picture films entitled "Honor Among Lovers" and "Dishonored," a suit charging breach of contract was filed in Federal Court by the Paramount Publix Corporation, of New York. The plaintiff concern seeks to collect $3,557.84, with interest from April 15.

Relatively high pressure covers most of the eastern half of the country with its crest over the upper lakes. There is some cloudiness over the Upper Mississippi Valley states and northward over Canada, and showery conditions prevail over that section. Generous rains occurred yesterday over most of the Atlantic Coast states, and there was a heavy fall over Eastern Pennsylvania. Temperatures are high again over the western plains and the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, while over the eastern half of the country there was little change in temperature, but with a tendency towards cooler.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising slowly. Stage at Franklin is 0.6 foot; Lock No. 7, 13.0; Pittsburgh, 10.3; Dam No. 4, 9.1; Dam No. 6, 7.8; Dam No. 10, 8.5, and Dam No. 13, 6.6. The dams are up. About one foot rise is expected at Pittsburgh.

Arrested in Hotel Here, Detroit Miss Will Be Returned to Her Parents

Mary Hapala, an attractive 16-year-old blonde, who ran away from her home in Detroit with $135 belonging to her mother, according to her testimony in Morals Court, was in custody of social workers today while arrangements were being made to send her home. She said she had come here to write a book.

Miss Hapala, admitting that she had taken her mother's money, said:

"I worked at home and never got anything for it. I was merely paying myself."

The girl was arrested in the Fort Pitt hotel yesterday by missing person bureau officers after hotel attaches' suspicions had been aroused by her youthful appearance. At Central Police Station she said she was Mary Carson, of Youngstown, and was spending a few days here on vacation. Confronted with a letter from the Chief of Police of Detroit giving a description of her, she admitted her identity.

The young girl testified that she was born in Pittsburgh and had come here to write a book.

MOTHER GETS WRIT FOR SON

Seeking to regain the custody of her son, Albert, Jr., 4, Mrs. Mildred Blackstock, 419 Olivet street, has procured a writ of habeas corpus in Common Pleas Court, directed to her husband, Albert Blackstock, and his mother, Mrs. Frances Blackstock, 28 Sedgwick street, Millvale.

The Blackstocks lived together, according to the petition, until July 3, when she had to leave, taking the boy with her to her mother's home on Olivet street.

Later in the day Blackstock forcibly took the child with him to his mother's home, the petition averred.

The boy is now living in squalid surroundings and without proper care, and his grandmother is unable to give him proper attention because of her advanced age, the petition alleged. The boy's father failed to provide for him, it said. A hearing was fixed for July 15 by Judge James H. Gray.

SEARCH PUSHED FOR STABBING SUSPECT

Photograph Found in Room Gives Clue in Slaying Of McKeesport Resident

State police, county detectives and police of Monongahela Valley communities today were engaged in a search for the man who Thursday night fatally stabbed Michael Jeney, 50, of 939 Jerome street, McKeesport, when Jeney ran to the rescue of a girl the man is alleged to have attempted to entice into an alley near Jeney's home.

The man sought for the stabbing, McKeesport police say, has been identified as Chrisdos Rinardo, 52, of Fifth avenue and White street, McKeesport. Police visited his rooms yesterday and a picture which was found in his belongings has been identified, the police allege, by a witness to the fatal stabbing. The picture, police say, is that of Rinardo.

The fatal stabbing was witnessed, police say, by Mary Jeney, 14, and her sister, Helen, 13, daughters of the victim. Mary is said to have chased Rinardo and to have hit him on the head with a glass she threw at him. Laura Baren, 16, of 935 Jerome street, also is said to have seen the killing.

According to Police Chief John J. Whalen, of McKeesport, Jeney's two daughters identified a picture of Rinardo as that of the man who stabbed their father.

CANAL FINANCE PLAN UPHELD

The proposition of former Mayor William A. Magee that the industrial communities to be benefited in event the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal is built should finance the construction of the waterway, has not yet met with any opposition on the part of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Calan Board, Alex W. Dann, chairman of the State Canal Commission, announced last night.

Chairman Dann stated that for the present the board will concentrate on the problem of obtaining a favorable report from army engineers on the route advocated by the local interests, rather than formulate a definite policy as to financing the canal. This attitude was expressed at a meeting of the board in the Courthouse yesterday.

Many women and children were in the ranks of the rioters.

The disorders marked the third riot within two days and followed sentencing of Ann Burlac, 22, one of the strike leaders, to 30 days in jail and a fine of $200 on a charge of assaulting a forelady in the General Fabrics plant several weeks ago. The young leader was released on bail, pending appeal of her case to the Superior Court.

HERRON SCORES NEW BOARD

The new Board of Registration Commissioners does not suit President of Council John S. Herron.

At the Fifth Ward Republican Club meeting last night Herron said:

"The first thing that the new Board of Registration Commissioners did was to announce that they would keep politics out of the office. Then they fired all the old employes and put in Malone and McGovern appointees. They next announced that no city or county committeemen or women can serve as registrars, probably on the theory that people who don't know anything about a job can do it better than people who do. Of course there's no politics in that."

Herron's remarks were part of a speech in which he also criticized the League of Women Voters. Of the women's organization he said:

"What did the League of Women Voters ever do that was constructive? All they have ever done is criticize and oppose public works. It's the politician, who is called the grafter, that does things, and somebody's always ready to say it can't be done or was done the wrong way."

COYNE TO TOSS HAT IN COUNTY RING SOON

Announcement Near, Senator Tells Crowd at Rally; Pledges Tax Cut Fight

State Senator James J. Coyne will formally announce his candidacy for county commissioner within a few days.

He told a crowd of 3,000 that turned out in spite of threatening skies last night for the Fifteenth Ward celebration in his honor at Burgwin Field, Hazelwood, that with the support he expects to have assured him he will be ready to make his formal announcement soon.

In his speech Coyne said:

"If I am elected a county commissioner I will work for a downward revision of taxes. I will aim for a conservative administration that will result in lower taxes. I would not favor any curtailment of public improvements, but I believe that the county government can be administered in such a way as to relieve the heavy taxation burden."

An automobile parade through Hazelwood and Greenfield, with 300 cars in line, preceded the celebration. Coyne pitched the first ball in a baseball game between the R. L. Irwin and the North Side Civic Club teams.

COYNE GETS OVATION

Councilmen John S. Herron, Robert J. Alderdice, W. Y. English, Michael J. Muldowney and Harry Little, Judges Sylvester J. Snee, William H. McNaugher, W. Heber Dithrich, Joseph Stadtfeld and John P. Egan, and Lloyd Waner and Steve Swetonic, members of the Pittsburgh baseball club, were introduced to the crowd during the ball game.

The Fifth Ward Regular Republican Organization tendered State Senator James J. Coyne a prolonged ovation previous to indorsing his candidacy for county commissioner at a meeting last night in the organization's rooms, 2010 Center avenue.

Councilman R. J. Alderdice was indorsed for re-election and Traffic Court Magistrate W. J. Soost was indorsed as a candidate for a seat in Council. Chairman Harry Feldman and Secretary Louis A. Schwartz, of the Fifth Ward organization, conducted the meeting.

OVERFLOW CROWD

About 300 members of the club filled the auditorium and an additional 500 thronged the sidewalk in front of the building to hear the speeches through amplifiers.

Speakers included Coyne, Alderdice, Soost, President of Council John S. Herron, Councilman M. J. Muldowney, Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, Robert B. Averbach, solicitor for Sheriff R. S. Cain, and Harry Diamond, assistant city solicitor.

Some of the speakers minimized the charges before the grand jury against Mayor Charles H. Kline and predicted his ultimate vindication.

DEFENDS KLINE

In presenting the Coyne indorsement, Secretary Schwartz said:

"Senator Coyne needs no introduction. To know him is to love him. To mention his name is to utter the idol of the rank and file. To say he is popular is putting it mildly."

Coyne replied:

"There is no need for drafting me. There is no public clamor for me to run for county commissioner. It is my own idea, as I would like to have the office."

Referring to Mayor Kline's indictment, Coyne declared:

"You may find, if he is tried, the jury will free him without leaving the box. It will be found that he did only what his predecessors did in signing contracts let by department heads."

ARCHERY GAINS POPULARITY

The popularity of archery is emphasized by the fact that Pittsburghers are holding a shoot at the Skytop Club, up in the Poconos, today and tomorrow. At Patton, Pa., a novel match was being played today by teams of two men each—two bankers and two members of the Arden Archery Club.

This is a game of golf-archery. Instead of using golf balls and clubs the archers will use bows and arrows. Supplanting the golf cups, the archers will have a three-inch circle target on each green. The rules specify that the bow and arrow enthusiasts must shoot the arrows through these tiny targets. Archery-golf has become a great favorite in many parts of the country and the match today is drawing a large crowd of spectators.

In the meantime hundreds of applications are coming for membership in the Sun-Telegraph Tom Thumb Junior Archers' Club—open to boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity. If the boys and girls who want to become experts with the bow and arrow will send in the application blank on this page they will be told how they can get a complete archery outfit without cost.

14,000 ATTEND ENDEAVOR MEET

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—(AP.)—A world weary of war and worldliness is looking to its Christian youth to lead a return to saner and sounder methods of life, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, told a preconvention banquet here last night.

Dr. Poling outlined ideals and purposes that will animate the fiftieth annual convention of the organization, which opens here today with an anticipated attendance of upwards of 14,000 persons from many countries.

Carlton H. Sherwood, executive secretary, predicted an interesting convention because of the "broad social and economic scope" of the resolutions to be debated. He said:

"Outstanding will be the support of prohibition, world peace and better citizenship movements."

BISHOP MOUZON AT CHAUTAUQUA

Consulate Stormed In Execution Protest

COLOGNE, Germany, July 11.—(AP.)—A small crowd of Communists, led by a woman, hurled a rock through a window of the American consulate yesterday. Shouts of "Down with America! Free the Negroes!" came from the crowd.

Similar demonstrations against the death sentence pronounced on eight Negroes in Scottsboro, Ala., in connection with an attack on two white girls, already have taken place at Dresden and Berlin.

At this time of the year everyone's enjoying gardens, and eager to hear about other folks' gardens. So many society women will attend the lecture on "Chinese Gardens," to be given in the gardens at the home of Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Ellsworth avenue, Friday evening, July 24.

The lecture is sponsored by the committee in charge of furnishing the Chinese room for the Cathedral of Learning. The speaker will be Teng-Kewi, Chinese artist, formerly associated with the Fine Arts Department of Harvard. He will contrast Oriental landscape gardening with American.

He will be in Pittsburgh for the next month to design and execute the decorations of the Chinese room. Proceeds of the lecture will be applied toward a fund for decorating the room. In charge of the garden lecture are members of the local Chinese committee, assisted by Mrs. Leroy B. Mitchell, Miss Thyrsa Amos, D. Owen Stephens and G. Stanley Rupp.

To Design Room

One of the members of the younger married set has a young son. The Frederick Eaton Crispins, of New York, are announcing the arrival of a son, Frederick Eaton Crispin, Jr., on July 9. Mrs. Crispin is the former Sara Louise Gwinner, daughter of the Edward William Gwinners. Her marriage was a social event of several summers ago.

There's to be another wedding of social interest this month, but it will take place in the West. The bride is Jane Davis, daughter of the Stephen B. Davises, of New York and Las Vegas, N. M., and the bridegroom Ferdinand Whitall Bailey, son of Mrs. Richard W. Bailey, of Sewickley.

Wedding July 16

And the wedding will take place Thursday, July 16, at "Sanguijuela," the Davis' Spanish ranch in Las Vegas, with the patio as the setting.

The bride-to-be will have two attendants, her sister, Marion La Rue Davis, as bridesmaid, and Mrs. James P. Blaisendell, of Claremont, Cal., her cousin, as matron of honor.

James West Arrott III, of Sewickley and Las Vegas, will be best man, and John L. Wigton, Eugene H. Kipp and Charles Neale Brown, all of Sewickley; Thomas E. Shaw, of Pittsburgh, and Stephen B. Davis, Jr., of New York, will serve as ushers.

The James West Arrotts, III, who are at the Arrott ranch in Las Vegas, will entertain the ushers The Eugene H. Kipps left Wednesday by motor and will arrive to attend a dinner the men of the bridal party will give Tuesday night, to be followed by a dance with Marion Davis as hostess. The Arrotts will entertain the bridal party and the out-of-town guests at their ranch with an old-fashioned Spanish barbecue supper and rodeo on Wednesday night.

Guests to Be Feted

Mrs. Richard W. Bailey, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, will leave Monday for Las Vegas.

And now I discover that all the engagements of members of the smart set weren't all announced in the merry month of June after all. July is to have its quota. The James Wolstoncroft Henrys, of Bigelow boulevard, Schenley Farms, have made known the betrothal of their daughter, Frances Elizabeth, and James Samuel O'Neil, of New York, son of the James Denny O'Neils, of Jackson City, Mich., and formerly of Bartlett street.

Betrothal Is Known

The bride-elect attended the Winchester Preparatory School, is a graduate of the Finch School, New York. Since her graduation she has been traveling on the continent. Her fiance attended Lawrenceville Preparatory School and is a Princeton graduate.

An early October wedding is being planned.

Mrs. Kulp and Miss Dietz Entertain With Bridge

Mrs. William Austin Kulp and her sister, Miss Babe Minor Dietz, of Ligonier, formerly of Braddock, entertained recently in the Latrobe Country Club with a bridge luncheon. Thirty tables of bridge were in play. The color scheme was in pink and blue.

Aides were Mrs. Richard Moonly, of Ligonier; Mrs. Samp Cannon, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Clark W. Kelly, of Swissvale; Mrs. Wesley Holmes, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. W. W. Whitfield, of Ridgeview Park, and Mrs. James Daugherty, of Edgewood.

Pennsylvania Federation Likely To Favor Massachusetts Woman for Presidency

Although it seems almost too early to begin talking of candidates for General Federation officers, in view of the fact that election does not take place until the biennial in Seattle in the spring, still the subject is one of interest. Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., past recording secretary and now first vice president, is a candidate for the presidency and probably will be Pennsylvania's favorite.

Although Mrs. John A. Frick, retiring president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, decided (much against the wishes of the delegates) to withdraw her name as a candidate for the second vice presidency, it is more than probable than she will be appointed to an important office after the election.

Several women have come out for both the first and second vice presidencies, among the former being Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, now a second vice president, and Mrs. Henry C. Taylor, of Bloomfield, Ia., now recording secretary. For the second vice presidency, Mrs. Clarence Fraim, of Wilmington, Del., now chairman of the department of legislation; Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, of Lima, O., chairman of the department of home; Mrs. W. E. Minier, of Oakland, Neb., chairman of the division of community service, and Mrs. Edward M. Land, of Statesville, N. C., a director, are the present candidates. Oregon is bringing out Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, dean of department chairman, as recording secretary, and Wisconsin has announced Mrs. Edward Hammet, of Sheboygan, as a candidate for re-election as treasurer.

Out for Office

Every one of these women is a past president of her own state federation.

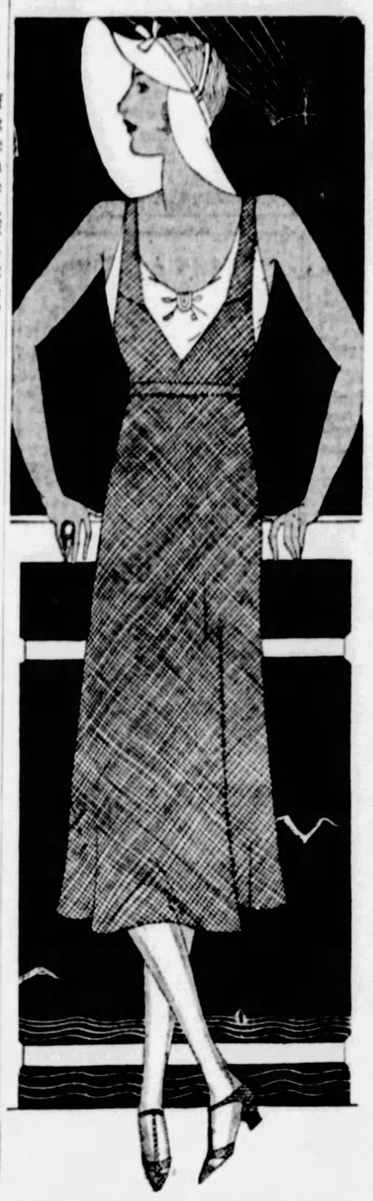
BEACH FASHIONS SHIFT AS THE SANDS OF THE BEACH

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 11.—Like the shifting sands of the beach, the beach fashions shift and dissolve into new and different manifestations. Time was when one could carefully put away the old bathing suit and beach robe with the assurance that it would do useful service the year following. But we have changed all that! Each season we must have a completely restocked beach wardrobe, for not only each season, but during the season itself there are invariably new ensembles and accessories. It is good that one spends the major portion of one's vacation day in these clothes, otherwise the whole holiday would be spent in changing one's clothes and it would be impossible to travel without a couple of trunks of clothes and accessories. As it is, a couple of tennis frocks, a smart collection of beach costumes and a few little dinner frocks will do their share to seeing you through the sartorial phase of your vacation in grand style.

SKETCHED TODAY are some of the newest achievements in the field of beach costumes. If one wants to run up to the hotel for tea straight from the beach, one has only to don this amusing suspender dress from Vionnet, putting it on right over the bathing suit. In this case, the bathing suit is of white jersey and is nipped in at the bodice front with a silver and red enamel clip. The straps pass over the shoulders, cross the back and are buttoned onto the belt. The plain skirt is circular in cut. A hiplength, cardigan jacket, not shown in the sketch, completes the costume and is of bright red woolen to match the suspender dress.

A RED SHANTUNG coatee over a white shantung frock makes this seashore ensemble by Chanel. The fitted jacket is trimmed with appliqued bands edged with pointed scallops and each band is about two inches wide. The scarf collar is knotted in front. Like many of Chanel's sleeves in this collection, there is a distinct pouching at the elbow, drawn in against the wrist. The ... circular movement with the fulness assembled at the center front.

MAKES GOOD :-: Newcomers in Hollywood Face Great Odds :-: IN THE THEATERS :-: Critics See and Have Their Say About New Shows

Society Girl Cast in Film

By HARRISON CARROLL
Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, July 11.

Newcomers in Hollywood face greater odds than ever, but the reward is all the sweeter for the one in a hundred who makes good.

Ruth Hall joins this select group with her assignment to play the lead in Warner Brothers' "Society Lane."

Up until about a year ago, Miss Hall expected to fulfill a conventional destiny. She was a society girl in Miami, and although a grandniece of Blasco Ibanez, author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," she followed the arts only to the extent of occasional appearances in Junior League plays and benefits.

Blasco Ibanez

Then Director Henry King brought a company to Miami to film "Hell Harbor." Finding Miss Hall one of the prettiest girls in town, he selected her for a bit.

After that she determined to become an actress. Her family persuaded, she came to Hollywood and joined the extra ranks. And there she remained until some one at Warners gave her a bit in Joe E. Brown's last picture. That was two months ago. Today she has a long-term contract and her first real opportunity.

"Society Lane" is a story of Park avenue. Catherine E. Knox wrote it and Roy Del Ruth directs.

A LA CINEMA

It is not too exaggerated to be true, the story they tell of a film executive who decided to make a mystery picture. Calling in a writer, he gave him some ideas and told him to make the story similar to a well-known mystery play.

"But that's not my line," objected the conscientious writer. "You have the man who wrote that play in the list. Why not let him do your story?"

"Oh, that fellow," snorted the executive, "he can't write."

LATEST GOSSIP

It could happen only in Hollywood. Dorothy Lee is buying the house her late husband built for their love nest.

It seems he built the house before the marriage, and it is not community property. Since the separation, she has been renting it from him. Now she'll get the deed in her own name. . . Odds on Richard Dix's plans now swing toward a settlement of his dispute with Radio. This is said to have been one of the reasons why Joseph Schnitzer went to New York. . . . B. H. Rogers, brother to Buddy, is back in town with his bride. After all, he won't be a jazz band leader. . . . Douglas MacLean will sail to Alaska on his yacht. He hopes to write two stories on the trip. . . . Some time ago an enterprising colored boy hauled a truckload of chairs to the scene of a premiere and sold them to the stargazers for 50 cents apiece. Business was so good a nearby drugstore suddenly awoke to the fact he was selling space within its property line. The owner made a 50-50 proposition to him, but the colored lad scorned it. Now the drugstore sells the seats. It's always thus.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Dude ranches were the economic salvation of the Northwest. Wyoming may be king of the dude ranches, but Santa Barbara, Cal., is daddy of the rich "dudes" owning ranches and enjoying 'em, and it's a great thing from every angle.

Will Rogers

They improve 'em, give lots of employment, raise fine horses and keep themselves out of a lot of worse devilment, so buy a ranch somewhere in the West. Every man has wanted to be a cowboy. Why play Wall street and die young when you can play cowboy and never die?

Yours, WILL.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Mr. Gauvreau and Mr. Clarke said to tell you thanks for the Rudy Vallee-Fay Webb marriage tip . . . Mr. Clarke wondered what prompted you to get so generous all of a sudden, so I explained that you knew it wouldn't "keep" and that it would have made you look silly in the col'm when the others front-paged it the same evening . . . The desk inserted full credit, however, with the 2nd edition . . . Mr. Scheuing, Rudy's manager, had called about 4 to give you the tip, but I told him you already had it, and he was a little stunned . . . He added, however, that Rudy had urged him to be sure and tell you "first," which was nice of Rudy, considering all the fun you've had with him . . . I looked up the files, and went back 22 months, and located your first mention of the pair, in which you indicated that they were "plotting to be riveted."

H. L. Mencken, Phil Goodman and "Red" Lewis are training for their Drinking-Around-the-World tour at the latter's Barnard, Vt., farm . . . At present they are designing a special knapsack to hold only bicarbonate . . . I have a swell miniature book on "Lovers"—one part called: "By These Symptons Ye Shall Know—It Is Love"—goes like this: Loss of appetite, followed by loss of sleep; phone conversation no matter what the price; unusual care in how one looks; sudden pangs of jealousy; keeping by oneself—far from crowds; writing lenghty letters; loss of interest in everyday happenings; short of temper with friends and acquaintances—so maybe that's what's the matter with me, huh? . . . Lou Holtz begins at the Palace tomorrow with Lyda Roberti.

Artie Paul was in. Wanted to tell you about the Turk who was out with another woman when his wife came along—Was his Fez red? . . . Princess Valdemar, who taught backgammon at the Moritz, is going to a column on the game for the New Yorker . . . Mr. Gauvreau's book, "Hot News," is in its third printing and its release date is today! . . . Metro paid him 25 Gs for the chin-ema rights, already! . . . "Columnist Murder" is in its second printing, by the way . . . The author thanks you for cooperating with all that publicity . . . I suppose you know Dave, the Blue Room man, has the kitchen now at the Friars' Club . . . Benny Holzman was the first customer, and asked for hash, to which Fred Bloch snapped: "Gee, but you're a sucker for a left-over!" . . . Mr. Ziegfeld wishes you would deny the reports that Helen Morgan is quitting the "Follies" . . . He wondered if you'd be interested in knowing that for the first time in 21 years, the "Follies" sold out matinee and night on July 4 . . . Simon & Schuster want you to do the Foreword to Reichenbach's "Phantom Fame."

Rosita Duncan was gypped out of a lot of money by a Cincinnati bellhop . . . The Famous Music Company feels wretched over the "went boom" line . . . It asserts it didn't go boom nor did it turn down that song . . . Did you know that several states prohibit showing female impersonators, even on the screen? . . . You gummed things on the James Whitcomb Riley swimmin' hole—it isn't in Ill., it is in Ind. . . . And a mutual friend of the James Cagneys says your clowning is liable to be misinterpreted—that Mrs. Cagney didn't sock Jimmy; that he talked to them long distance and they denied it . . . So I thought: "Of course!" . . . When Bolton Mallory, editor of Life, married Nancy Carroll, his rivals on Judge wired him: "Oh, well. That's 'Life' for you!"

The first night George Jean Nathan covered a play in London as critic for the London Express, cards were distributed warning the audience that the "most feared critic" was among them . . . Some ad, wot? . . . George will be back on the 25th . . . You recently said the editor of Dance magazine can't dance. Well Busby Berkeley, who was divorced yesterday from Esther Muir in Hollywood, is a leading dance arranger for the best shows, and he can't even do a time-step! The Futura mags will be launched in October by a rival group opposing the Tower Magazines, distributed by the Woolworth Stores . . . The new group will distribute through opposition 5 and 10s . . . Joseph Schenck called and said the landlord put in those new wood panels and he didn't fire anyone.

Miss Etting sent you a darling new photo of herself, which I've sent out for framing, so please leave me $4 . . . It amused me no little to note That-Lad-Who-Thinks-You'll-Even-Mention-His-Name who claimed "Scoopee" on you . . . I say it amused me, considering how he uses two of your pets, "chune" and "revusical" . . . Some people have more nerve than an aching tooth . . . Is there no limitation to this form of flattery?

The heat is killing me . . . The fan keeps blowing things all over the floor—except the stale things that come in the mail, so I have to turn off the fan . . . Allan Cole, editor of the Pleasant Plains (Ill.) Argus, says he got a letter of complaint from a person who wanted to know why he incessantly quoted you when you were nothing but a literary roughneck? . . . He replied that maybe it was because you dislike the same people he dislikes . . . Not bad . . . Al Goodman, 40, and conductor of "Band Wagon" orchestra, is a grandpappy! . . . His son-in-law is the first fiddler in the crew . . . Mayor Walker, who marries so many people, named O'Reilly, Moore, O'Flaherty, etc., uses a prayerbook presented by Rabbi Krass . . .

Incidentally, of all the brides sealed by Jimmy, only one failed—Mary Lewis.

Here's another feud . . . . . Between Vanity Fair and Norman Anthony's new magazine, "Ballyhoo" . . . . . Seems that the new magazine reprinted one of V. F.'s front covers, nominating it for oblivion, a travesty on Vanity Fair's page by that name . . . . . So V. F. is suing . . . On the grounds that its entire contents are copyrighted, etc. . . . . J. H. Pollack called. Said to tell you that things theatrically were so bad in Philly that dramatic critics were covering the movies . . . . . A lad who wouldn't leave his name would like to know why Schmeling was arrested for his assault on that process server? . . . I see by the papers that the son of a former president of the Western Union is being sued for heart balm, the gal producing his love letters—heheh—Don't Write! Telegraph!—R. C.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

'Way out in Arkinsaw they're gettin' a fatted calf ready for Mr. Richard Powell, who is going to visit his parents in Little Rock, where Dick's pappy sells plows, mowing machines and other farm gadgets to the sodbusters. Dick's second trip to th' ol' home town in five years is to begin after he masters the last ceremony in the Stanley next Thursday nite, and it is made possible by the coming, on Friday, of Cab Calloway and his band in a Negro revue, "Hot From Harlem," which has been picking cotton in the Cotton Club, New Yawk. It promises a lot of flaming talent, musical and stepping, which may even include Jazzlips Richarsdson.

Small Timer denies that his nurse dropped him on his head as a baby. He explains the dizziness is the result of the financial blow he received in the sock market.

Fred Waring, the pride of Blair County and the joy of Tyrone, say nothing of the delirium of State College, brings his Pennsylvanians to the Penn next Friday. In this jazz age the Keystone commonwealth likely would be considered a backward state had not Tom and Fred Waring made known to the world that we, too, have saxophone players. Up and down the land they have taken their crew of Pennamites, scattering seductive umpah and strewing titillating tootle. They've made Pennsylvania just about the most prominent state in the musicians' union.

Small Timer says that it has seldom been his luck to "stop the show," although he has been given the blame when several became stranded.

The Harris will celebrate payday today by breaking open a new week, cinematically speaking. The main attraction is to be "The Good Bad Girl," with James Hall and Mae Clarke in the highlighted spots.

Forgiven Debtors Say Thanks With Faster Bullets

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

What do you think was the first fruit of the Hoovertorium?

German scientist invented new bullet that will travel twice as fast as ordinary kind.

And just when we were becoming so used to the old-fashioned bullets.

Looks like war is related to drinking and necking. You can make it illegal but you can never make it unpopular.

We are now keeping track of roving diplomats in Europe same as we did with our 1918 soldiers. We mark 'em by pins on the map. And some of the heads on those pins are very small.

First test of Hoovertorium comes next week. A German payment is due in Paris and it had better be there on time. If it ain't there you are going to hear the loudest squawk since the monkey pulled Noah's whiskers.

Why not wipe the slate clean and swallow the sponge? The moratorium looks like a Barnum gag anyway. Phineas had a tough time getting rid of his audiences who wanted to see the show twice. They wouldn't go out a door marked "exit."

Finally, Barnum put up a sign, "this way to the egress."

They thought it was a new kind of animal and busted their necks piling out into the street.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, July 11.

THE MAN WALKED into my office with a broad smile on his face. He had such an air of prop happiness about him that I felt certain he was either an undertaker or an insurance salesman. But, as usual, I was wrong. He slapped me on the back and pumped my hand very warmly.

"Well, well, well," he began, "so you're Mr. Hellinger. It certainly is a pleasure to meet you. Well, well, well."

For no reason at all, I decided to be nice to him.

"That's right," I chirped. "I'm happy to know you, too. Was there something you wanted me to do for you?"

He drew up a chair and began to talk as though he were a long lost brother.

"Mr. Hellinger," he asserted, "there's nothing in the world that you can do for me. But there's something that I can do for you. And, by golly, I'm going to do it for you.

"You don't know me, but I've admired your work for a long time. After reading your column this morning, I got to thinking about you. And I said to myself, 'Eddie, you're going to do something for Hellinger.' So here I am. Ha, ha, ha."

I began to grow a trifle nervous. When a bird talks in that fashion, he usually winds up by asking for a dollar or two.

"That's very nice of you, mister," I replied. "But what . . . ?"

He stepped right in.

"Tell you what I have in mind," he went on. "I'm connected with the radio field and I stage some of the biggest programs on the air. We're having one of them a week from next Thursday with some of the nation's biggest names scheduled to appear.

"You know what I'm going to do, Mr. Hellinger? I'm going to list you with those big names and let you do about five minutes on that very program. How do you like that for an unknown friend?"

I nodded.

"That's wonderful of you, Mr. —er—Mr——"

"Burns is the name," he smiled. "Eddie Burns. But all the boys call me Burnsey. I like to have my friends call me Burnsey. It's sure is a good old name, I'll say."

"It certainly is," I agreed. "But let's get back to that radio thing. How much did you intend to pay me for that appearance?"

The effect of that question was amazing to behold. I thought the man was about to have a stroke. His eyes began to pop. Strange, choking noises came from his throat.

"P—p—pay?" he stammered. "Did I hear you mention money, Mr. Hellinger? Did you say that?"

I began to doubt it myself.

"I think so," I said.

He pulled a handkerchief from his pocket. He appeared to be on the verge of tears.

"My dear man," he murmured shakily, "you surprise me beyond words. I come to you as a friend and offer you this tremendous opportunity. Think of the publicity you will get. Think of the thrill you will have as you speak to the millions who are hanging on your every word. Think——"

I was getting a trifle sore now. It was the same old hooey.

"Listen to me, Mr. Burns," I interrupted, "I've heard that speech more times than you've said it. I'm not interested in publicity and I'm not interested in thrilling the unseen millions. Right now I'm interested in thrilling the landlord with a rent check.

"If you want to talk business it's okey with me. If not—well, I was happy to have seen you, old pal."

Mr. Burns opened his mouth several times—but closed it swiftly on each occasion. Finally, a speech popped out.

"How—how much would you want?"

I smiled sweetly.

"$1,000," I said.

My visitor leaped from the chair as though his trousers had suddenly caught fire. He grabbed his hat.

"Out of the question, sir," he asserted, angrily. "Absolutely out of the question. I can't afford to pay any such salary. I'm sorry you do not see this thing my way. Good day, sir."

"Good day," I returned.

He walked to the door. He opened it. He hesitated. He closed the door and walked back to my desk again.

"I have another idea, Mr. Hellinger," were his astounding words. "If I give you $500 for that program, will you bring along Al Jolson?" . . .

ALTHOUGH the radio engineers say that television is already an accomplished fact, neither Dave Murray nor I will believe it until we hear the neighbors begin to complain about it. . .

"IT LOOKS as though the depression has hit the ocean," radios Fred Allen from the S. S. Ile de France. "We saw a whale yesterday and it only spouted a foot high!" . . .

Police Deny Man Strike Feud Victim

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 11.—Apparently the victim of a hit-run driver, the body of an unknown man was found lying along the National pike a short distance east of West Alexander.

Following an investigation by County Detectives William B. Dinsmore and Frank A. Creps, the theory that the dead man had been the victim of the mine strike feud was scouted, but the investigation will be continued.

Madge Evans, former child star, returns to the screen in Ramon Novarro's new starring picture, "Son of India."

Artist Hero In Fulton, Sheridan

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Women Love Once," co-featuring Paul Lukas and Eleanor Boardman, is the current feature in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square.

The film presents the story of a home-loving husband who goes to Paris to study art and returns home with a temperamental viewpoint. He's always searching for something. He doesn't know where to find it. Neither does his wife. So much unhappiness ensues.

There is another woman in his life and another man comes into the wife's life. So, for a time, it looks like a trip to Reno and a couple new marriage ceremonies.

But fate, in the person of a motor car driver, intervenes. The small daughter of the couple is run over. A reconciliation is the result.

Mr. Lukas' performance makes the affair worth while.

Wesley Eddy Is Feature In Penn

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Wesley Eddy is beginning a happy homecoming week in the Penn, where a house that overflowed into the standee channel greeted him yesterday. Wes is a performer in the stage presentation, "Bouquet of Melodies," and the intermediary between the audience and the other artists in the same show, which features Andrew and Louise Carr, brother and sister steppers.

The screen attraction is "Just a Gigolo," originally titled "The Dancing Partner," a nonsensical trifle starring William Haines. It gives a glimpse of something we haven't seen in a talkie in a long time, a sub-title. Which is the movie way of getting rid of a lot of sexy moments on the screen and leaving them to the imagination. Yet there's plenty of "sophistication" left.

HAINES IS GAY BOY

In this one William Haines is a gay boy whose rich uncle wants him to marry the daughter of a friend or suffer the sight of uncle's fortune going to charity, egad. Original, eh, what? Since Bill can think or no more worthy charity than himself, he makes a counter proposal. All modern girls are frivolous, and the one proposed for him can be no different. He'll pose as a gigolo to test her and if this doesn't prove his point he'll marry her.

Of course, he doesn't prove his point and, of course, he does win her promise of a wedding, although she is indignant no end when a tattling servant reveals to her what is going on.

LAUGHS ARE FREQUENT

There are frequent laughs and some satisfactory acting. If you are a Haines fan you will like him very much, for he is, as always, Haines. C. Aubrey Smith, veteran actor, does excellent work as the uncle. Irene Purcell, a newcomer to the screen, gives the central feminine role a vivacious quality that is refreshing—and does she slap Haines' face!

Wesley Eddy brings back his cheerful, airy manner and puts spirit and dash into his song and other specialties. Olive Sibley and a large group of Chester Hale girls are prominent in the show. Dick Leibert introduces "Chinese singing" as part of his organ feature. President Hoover explains the debt holiday as part of The Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter in the Hearst Metrotone News Reel.

Stanley Has Brother Drama

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Chances," being a movie version of the A. Hamilton Gibbs novel, opened yesterday in the Stanley. It is a drama of brothers, laid against a war background.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has his first starring role in this one. There is a dash and a bravo about his performance in the sequences gay with youth and romance that come at the film's beginning. But in later war episodes things sort of slip beyond his comprehension.

The young actor gives promise of becoming a better dramatic actor than his acrobatic father. But he has yet to master the art of carrying his characters through stern and tragic drama, without them appearing mechanical or "far-away."

A TRAGIC TWIST

However, in the present case, Fairbanks is confronted with a rather difficult hero to start with. This hero is a fellow who could choose from many women, but he picks on the only girl his brother ever loved.

So 'way out there, where the bullets are whizzing, they come to a misunderstanding. Brotherly love fades like battlefield gas fumes. The dramatic story takes a tragic twist.

Anthony Bushell, young English actor, portrays the other brother. Rose Hobart is the girl.

The best shot in the film, though far from the loudest, is the scene in the London fog, which starts the story on its way.

THEY WANT BEER!

"Venetian Serenaders" is the stage show. Bays and Speck are present with their usual comedy chatter and steps. Bobby Gilbert, the fellow with the talking fiddle, and Henri Therrien, singer, also appear. It is an average show. Dick Powell leads the band and puts on a "We Want Our Beer" number. It's a bit foamy.

Dancing girls, overture and organlogue are other attractions.

SLUMP CAUSES STOCKHOLDER ALERTNESS

Bethlehem Bonus System Revision Chief Result Of Share Owners' Revolt

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Depression ended the oft-remarked apathy of outside stockholders in American corporations, and in fact started stockholder revolts in numerous companies.

In some instances, perhaps the criticism of management sprang from poor sportsmanship on the part of those who were satisfied as long as profits flowed in. In other cases, there were legitimate grievances, or at least examples of honest controversy. There was perhaps room for real difference of opinion, for example, in the matter of the bonus plan for officers of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Mr. Rukeyser

MINORITY LARGE

Charles M. Schwab, the chairman, who had personally administered the plan, submitted it to stockholders for approval earlier in the year, and, though he was technically vindicated with a substantial majority, there was nevertheless an unusually large minority vote of censure.

Recognizing the criticism, Mr. Schwab recently proposed and received stockholder approval for a substantial modification of the plan, which incidentally reduces the compensation paid to executives. Under the revised plan, the bonuses may not exceed 8 per cent of the net profit of the corporation after deduction of all fixed charges, including depreciation, which shall include depletion and obsolescence, and after deducting all the dividends on the preferred stocks.

OUTSTANDING RESULT

This is perhaps the outstanding result thus far of the current wave of stockholder revolts.

As a matter of fact, as Eustace Seligman, member of Sullivan & Cromwell, attorneys, has pointed out, the law has not yet taken cognizance of the rise of the small investor, which, according to T. N. Carver, Harvard economist, amounts to the present economic revolution in the United States.

MAY SHUT DOWN TEXAS WELLS

HOUSTON, Tex., July 11.—Forty-five hundred wells in Southwest Texas face a shutdown, due to prevailing low price of crude. Most of these wells are on the pump and a shutdown will spell ruin to many of them because of water intrusion. Lifting costs in the Bruner and Darst Creek Fields range from 16c, the lowest cost, to 84c a barrel. The highest and new posted price of Humble Oil and Refining Company is 20c a barrel for those fields. Considerable water has to be lifted with the oil. Several operators are building storage and holding their oil, but this condition will be possible for only a short time.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Bank clearings this week cover the five business days up to Friday. The total at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $6,854,344,000, is 16.4 per cent below that of last year. At New York City, clearings of $4,718,516,000 are 14.7 per cent less, while the aggregate at centers outside of New York of $2,135,828,000 is 19.9 per cent smaller.

The week both this year and last includes only five business days. Clearings this week are considerably small than for the five-day week, covering the Decoration Day holiday. The amount also is less than for any full week in the intervening period, although in part a portion of the half yearly settlements, which should appear at this time, is covered by this week's clearings. Apparently, there is little evidence of any betterment in the volume of payments through the bank.

Bank clearings for the week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases compared with same period a year ago, follow:

GILLETTE CASE ARGUED

BOSTON, July 11.—(AP.)—William G. Thompson, counsel for minority stockholders of the Gillette Safety Razor Company, yesterday argued before a master that the capital of the company had been impaired to the extent of $15,000,000 to $17,000,000 through the unlawful acts of certain directors.

Thompson argued before Judge William M. Prest, sitting as a master in the suit of minority stockholders against directors of the corporation in 1930, who seek to recover $21,000,000 in losses alleged to have been incurred unlawfully.

Thompson set forth that the measure of damages to which the plaintiffs were entitled to recover, aside from the impairment of capital, was the excessive price which the Gillette Company was obliged to pay for its own stock over its fair value because of the manipulations of the defendants. The original bill had claimed that the defendant directors had profited when the company purchased large quantities of its own stock in order to complete a merger with the Auto Strop Razor Company, having previously organized a pool to acquire the stock.

PROBE BOARD'S GRAIN DEALS

CHICAGO, July 11.—(INS.)—The disclosure that government funds were buying wheat through a trading concern in which the Federal Farm Board Stabilization Corporation had complete control, is being investigated by the Chicago Board of Trade.

George S. Milnor, general manager of the stabilization corporation and manager of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, declared in a formal statement that to his knowledge there had been no violation of trading rules in purchasing an entrance into the Board of Trade.

The stabilization corporation had controlled the Updike Grain Company for about six months and by trading through that company the farmers were able to save the amount of margin required in future trading, Milnor stated.

A committee, appointed by the board of directors of the Board of Trade, was said to have been in conference, drafting a new rule which would make such trading impossible in the future.

For the 12 months ended June 30, output totaled 3,147,075,892, an increase of 4.2 per cent over the preceding 12-month period. Omitting sales to other utilities, output was 1.9 per cent less than last year.

British Textile Business Better

STOCK MARKET TONE HEAVY AT START

Decline Brings Slightly Steadier Tendency After Small Losses Are Made

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—A trickle of early selling gave stocks a heavy tone today, although the dullness of the market on the decline brought slightly steadier tendencies after losses of a point or so had been scored by numerous leaders.

United States Steel dropped 2 points, but reduced its decline. American Telephone met support after a smaller loss and American Can also firmed. Westinghouse, du Pont, International Telephone and Bethlehem Steel eased 1 or slightly more. Profit-taking appeared in the chemicals, Allied losing nearly 3. Rails were dull and heavy. Atchison dipped 2 and Union Pacific 3.

Stock markets in London and Paris were closed, but the Berlin Boerse experienced a sharp bear raid which was halted by banking support. Foreign exchange demands on the Reichsbank were substantial. The mark opened 2 points lower here.

Heavy withdrawals of French balances were reported in London, sending the exchange rate on Paris to around the gold export point. Sterling cables opened here at $4.86 11-16, unchanged.

"SYMPHONY UNDER STARS"

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

ONLY A POET in proper mood and proper setting could conjure for you the atmosphere we "see" tonight in Walter Damrosch's radio concert from Hollywood Bowl . . . stars hanging like lanterns in the sky . . . twinkling shadows . . . a quarter moon . . . sweet mountain breezes . . . and under this serene canopy, 100 picked musicians playing soft, dreamy music. . . . Romance . . . ah, love but a day! Tune KDKA at 12:30 a. m. tonight for this bivouac of the beautiful . . . something really different in radio broadcasts. . . . Bernice Claire, star of "The Desert Song," and Little Jack Little are on WCAE at 9:30. . . . B. A. Rolfe puts the brakes on his fast tempo (WCAE, 10) in an experiment to learn how fans like their dance music. . . . We heard the sketch, "Lazy," a few weeks ago while straggling through one of our amusement parks after a strenuous day and it struck us as something restful . . . the chief character reminds us of Ed Harvey of KDKA.

Question a Day:

I have seen the mark "R-9" on several radio logs. What does it mean?—Sylvester W., Fairmont, W. Va.

Answer—The "R code" in radio refers to reception. The quality of reception is graded from 1 to 9, the lower numbers designating weakness and the higher numbers strength. "R-9" means perfect reception. You saw it, no doubt, on an Army or Navy log.

Cliff Marshall, musical director at WCAE, rehearsed the orchestra last night with a set of headphones attached to his ears . . . thus getting the proper balance of his musicians, exactly as they would be heard going out over the air. The same stunt was used by Dr. Charles Heinroth in preparing his organ recitals for radio presentation.

Studio Lights

Harry C. Browne, director of Hank Simmons' Show Boat, confesses that he has never been within half a mile of a real showboat . . .

When one of the WWSW programs ran short the other day something had to be done . . . Bill Moorhouse was handed a newspaper, pushed into the studio and introduced as "Jerry Parker, the news flash man" . . . and did he sweat?

This is the big day of the KDKA-Red Arrow golf tournament at East Palestine, O. . . . as a special event, Percy Boyd has been matched against a foursome to give him a chance at winning a box of assorted wavelengths . . .

Both KDKA and the Red Arrow boys feel confident . . . the Red Arrows won last year's tournament . . .

In a certain downtown store there's a radio amplifying system for special pep talks in the morning . . . imagine the customers' surprise throughout the establishment the other afternoon when it suddenly burst forth with a recording of "Would You Like to Take a Walk?" . . . somebody forgot to disconnect the phonograph.

School Head Admits Handcuffing Girls

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(INS.)—Handcuffs are fastened to unruly girls at the National Training School for Girls to quiet them and make them obey the rules, Lottie I. Richards, the superintendent, admitted. The school is located at Muirkirk, Md.

This disciplinary action was criticized in a report the Wickersham Crime Commission attached to its survey of penal institutions sent President Hoover earlier in the week.

Streets Made Safe For Pajama Girls

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—(AP.)—Buffalo girls may wear pajamas or sailor style trousers on the city streets without fear of being criticized by the police, Commissioner Austin J. Roche said today, but woe betide the "curb cruisers" who attempt to annoy the young ladies while driving slowly along the curb.

The commissioner said the pajama costumes were "all right during the hot weather," and added that in any case "we can't be bothered about them."

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, July 11.—As radio speakers England's political leaders are far superior to ours. They blend eloquence with charm. They have the knack of appealing to both the head and the heart.

All three of Britain's political chieftains—MacDonald, Lloyd George and Baldwin—are excellent public speakers, with MacDonald just a shade in the lead. All three have a racy quality to their tongue. MacDonald may lack the fiery enthusiasm of Lloyd George or the intellectual flights of Baldwin, but he has something the others lack—the soul of a poet, the fervor of an evangelist, the magnetism of an actor.

I wonder if our politicians listen to him, listen to him not so much for his argument, but for his oratorical style. They will benefit if they do. They will certainly gain the impression that MacDonald's speaking manner has much to do with his political success, his ability to win a high place—and, what is more important—hold it.

Political speaking in the republic is at a pretty low ebb so far as the radio is concerned. The most effective public speakers in the two old parties are Borah, James A. Reed, Democracy's former chief siege gun on Capitol Hill, and Al Smith. Borah has not been his old thundering self since Hoover hung his hat in the White House. His style comes nearest to that of Britain's triumvirate. When occasion demands he can be quiet as eloquent, though not as charming.

Reed and Smith fit in more with the oratorical traditions of the land. Both know the give and take of debate. If Reed has the more stinging style, a flair for devastating satire, Smith chooses the weapon of ridicule, uses it in a language that the man in the street can understand. All three are at their best in the heat of a political campaign when they can attack an opponent and cut him to pieces.

It won't be long now before the big show starts along the Potomac front. It can't come too soon for the sultans of the studios. Next to the prize ring pawings of the palookas, nothing so stimulates the sale of radio sets, keeps 10,000,000 ears cupped to loudspeakers as a presidential stakes. The reason, of course, lies in the drama and color of a campaign. Politicians then shed their pompousness alongg with their manuscripts. They get down to earth and call a spade a spade.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

SAYS BUSINESS HAS PASSED LOW POINT

Penn Mutual Official Claims Slump Proved Life Insurance Value

Financial suffering is not yet over, but there is no doubt that the bottom of the worst depression in history has been passed, E. Paul Huttinger, newly-elected manager of agents' training of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, declared on a visit to the organization's local agency in the Clark building, which is under the leadership of Holgar J. Johnson, general agent.

Mr. Huttinger said:

"There is no business which holds greater promise for the future than life insurance, either as an investment or as a business opportunity. Many reasons support our prophecy, but two of them are so obvious that anybody can see them.

VALUE PROVED

"The first is the need to restore policies which lapsed during the past two years. Former policyholders will make this the first step of their future financial plans. They will not need to be resold, for they have already bought life insurance protection for definite and specific purposes.

"The second reason is the dollar value of life insurance savings so conclusively proved by the recent economic disaster. Men who formerly may have treated their insurance policies casually found them to be the only security upon which they could count the value and get it in cash."

AGENCY EXPANDS

Mr. Huttinger's visit to the Pittsburgh office has been brought about by the enlarged development of the agency and in order to aid the local officials of the agency in the training and development of its extensive sales organization.

The local agency is composed of over 120 representatives, serving the Western Pennsylvania field, with branch offices located at Erie, Oil City, Altoona, Johnstown and Wheeling.

LULL AFFECTS GLASS TRADE

The flat glass industry is settling down into what is likely to be the usual quiet summer season, according to National Glass Budget. Industries upon which the various branches of the sheet glass business depend as markets are extremely dull. Reports from the automobile manufacturing centers are to the effect that production schedules will be low for the next 60 days. Building construction work is not maintaining a level that is likely to have any decided influence on the demand for glazing glass.

While the mirror industry shows signs of improvement no large volume of business is anticipated in the near future. Such business as is transacted is almost certain to be of the hand-to-mouth type, as sales interests are only carrying sufficient glass to take care of immediate requirements.

E. PAUL HUTTINGER

Mr. Huttinger, new manager of Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company agents' training, a visitor to the Pittsburgh agency.

RETAIL TRADE VOLUME FAIR

Retail trade continues in fair volume, although prices are averaging considerably lower than a year ago and sales consequently average less, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

It is estimated that retail sales for the first six months will average about 10 per cent lower than for the same period last year. Wholesalers report buying light and almost entirely for filling in purposes.

Attempts are still being made to lower production of crude oil. Production of bituminous coal continues at a considerably lower rate than year ago, with output for the first six months estimated at about 18 per cent lower than for the same period of 1930. Demand continues to show little improvement.

Collections in this district continue irregular and wholesalers report the average still slow.

Impaired Freight Cars Show Gain

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Class I railroads on June 15 had 172,805 freight cars in need of repairs or 7.8 per cent of the number on line, according to the American Railway Association.

This was an increase of 2,640 cars above the number in need of repair on June 1, at which time there were 170,165, or 7.7 per cent.

Confidence in Future of Business Improved

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

GREATER CONFIDENCE in the future of business has been apparent during recent weeks although there has been no actual indication of a change in the general economic trend. Industrial activity has been slowly declining to the lowest levels since the post war depression. The general belief that the debt moratorium will react favorably on business has been the chief factor in developing a more optimistic attitude than was prevalent a month ago.

A reduction in business activity at this time of the year is entirely normal and should not be interpreted as a particularly unfavorable sign, except that in a few industries it has extended to more than seasonal proportions.

The real test of the future business trend will take place at the close of the present summer. At that time business may logically be expected to have a seasonal improvement. The extent of this improvement may give the first indication of the truth of the belief that the bottom of the depression has been reached.

Chief Developments of the Week

THE PRINCIPAL BUSINESS development of the week was the approval of the debt moratorium by France. While it is generally expected that conditions in Europe will be materially helped by the postponement of war debt payments, it must be remembered that all the troubles of business in other countries are not likely to be corrected by this single step.

Most of the business developments in this country were unfavorable last week. The unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation declined 141,129 tons during June. Steel production slumped to 33 per cent of capacity. Stock prices reacted. Wheat prices slumped to new low levels. Crude oil prices were cut in Texas and the Midcontinent areas. Automobile output was reduced.

Orders Booked Here

ON THE FAVORABLE SIDE, brokers' loans declined $24,000,000. Large orders were booked by the Westinghouse Electric and Westinghouse Air Brake companies. Textile and shoe companies reported increased production schedules. Leather prices advanced. Makers of tin cans reported that their business is holding close to the levels of a year ago. This is being reflected in a comparatively high rate of tin plate production in the Pittsburgh district.

The decline in prices still appears to be under way. Montgomery Ward & Co. has announced that prices in its new catalogue will be reduced about 10 per cent.

The reduction in crude oil prices has carried quotations in some fields to a critical point. Many Texas oil producers may be forced to suspend operations. A plan to shut down the Oklahoma City pool is under consideration. The margin of profit in bringing oil to the surface has been entirely eliminated in some cases. This situation may help to reduce the enormous stocks of oil which have been troubling the industry for years. The producer with enough resources to stay in business eventually will benefit from this but many small operators may be forced to the wall.

JUNE POSTAL RECEIPTS OFF

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The decline in postal receipts in June of last year was considerably less than either the percentage or actual decline of May receipts under May, 1930, according to Post-office Department figures.

June receipts dropped 5.41 per cent in 58 selected cities under the corresponding month of last year, while the drop from May to May was 11.24 per cent. Fifty industrial cities reported postal receipts 3.42 per cent in June under June a year ago, as compared with 8.63 per cent, the drop from May to May.

Total June receipts at the 50 selected cities amounted to $26,442,305 in comparison with $27,955,832 in June, 1930, a difference of $1,513,527.

At the 50 industrial cities receipts totaled $2,956,916 in June, against $3,061,531 in June, 1930.

STEEL MAKERS LOOK FOR PICK UP

Production Now Below Nation's Requirements; Price Test in Offing

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel producers expect improvement in the next few months in general line demand rather than in the special items, such as increased buying by the railroads or the automobile trade, or by there being more construction work. It is held that steel production now is below minimum requirements for a going country, even though that pace of going is materially reduced. There should be a substantial increase in farm implement production as there has been hardly any of late. Shipments out of stock are now reported as increasing.

Heavy melting steel scrap delivered Pittsburgh district is quotable at $10.25 to $10.75, representing the second 25-cent advance in two weeks. The stiffening is due to difficulty in covering, so much scrap being held back, not to mill demand, which so far remains very light.

TRY PRICE RAISE

Finished steel prices have been at unchanged levels for weeks, with the exception of sheets and strips, and have shown no disposition to soften or strengthen. In hot rolled strips there is a dollar a ton advance since late in June, with no change in cold rolled. The advance is chiefly on contract business and there is so little specifying that the market undergoes little test.

In the case of sheets a somewhat ambitious attempt to advance prices is in progress, and the mills individually seem determined to adhere to their advanced levels. The market will hardly be tested until late in the month as buyers were given through June 30 to cover at old prices for July shipment only.

STABILITY WANTED

As to steel prices generally, comment is made that buyers as a rule do not want lower prices, as many merely manufacture for resale and all want stable prices. Several finished steel products have been showing substantial losses of late, partly on account of high costs due to light operation, but even with a high operating rate there would have been losses in sheets. In bars, shapes and plates the currently quoted market of 1.65c, if obtained on all tonnage, would bring fair sized profits with an operation of 75 per cent or better.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
"Public Improvements Promote Progress"
The construction of the Simpson-Howell Road in Elizabeth Township involved a new stretch of hard-surfaced road in the southeastern section of the County, which had been under consideration for some time. It will facilitate northbound traffic towards McKeesport and the Monongahela Valley towns. It extends from a point on the Boston Road 0.25 miles from Rock Run Road, in a southerly direction, to a point on Round Hill Road—this latter road carrying much of the Uniontown traffic by the way of Elizabeth.
The pavement is of reinforced concrete 18 feet wide, 7 inches thick at center and 9 inches at edges. Its length is 2.37 miles and represents this increased road mileage to the County Highway System.
This contract was awarded to J. W. Butler on January 12, 1921. The improvement was completed during April, 1930, the final construction cost being $135,728.54. The source of County funds was the 1928 Peoples Bond Issue.

Picking Robin Manager. | English Netters Win.
Sweetland Pirate Jinx. | French Boxer Advances.
Holds Three Victories. | Carnera Not Feared.

WRIGHT POSSIBILITY FOR PILOT'S JOB

NOW THAT IT'S generally understood Wilbert Robinson will not be retained to manage the Brooklyn club next season, the dopesters are getting busy trying to guess the identity of the man who will be chosen to succeed him. The possibility that Robbie may yet drive the team through to the pennant and thus make the situation rather embarrassing to the men who are planning to get rid of him seemingly does not enter into the reckoning. It is said the two factions among the club owners have agreed to go through with the proposed managerial change regardless of the position in which the Robins finish.

Glenn Wright

One of the men to figure in the latest guesses as having a chance to be appointed to the place is Glenn Wright, former Pirate shortstop. Wright, at present captain of the team, has not sought the post in anyway, it is said, but according to some eastern critics he is fancied by more than one of the stockholders as Robbie's successor. It is reported that Wright would be the choice of Robbie himself if the latter were picking a manager. In recent weeks Robbie has given Glenn increased authority on the field, even in the matter of changing pitchers during a game.

AS IS ALWAYS the case when a managerial berth is open, or is about to become vacant, the guessers are naming practically every baseball man available for the post. Zack Wheat was one of the first to be mentioned, and among others named later were Max Carey, Charley Moore, manager of Brooklyn's Hartford farm; Ivan Olson, Jimmy Johnston and even Wally Gilbert.

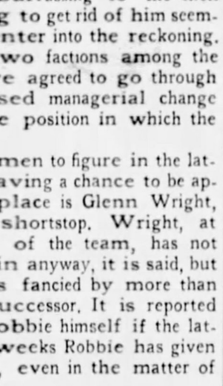
In well-informed baseball circles Carey is thought not to stand much chance. For one thing he is said to be on the wrong side of the political fence. Several weeks ago when Carey attended a Sunday game at Ebbets Field it was reported he had called there for a conference with President Frank York on the managerial matter, but Max himself exploded that yarn by relating that York had passed within a few feet of him, looked directly at him and failed to recognize him.

IN THE MEANTIME, while the fans around the National League circuit are advancing various reasons for the improvement that has turned the Robins from trailers into pennant contenders, the Brooklyn players themselves point to Mickey Finn as one of the answers to the question.

Since Finn supplanted Fresco Thompson at second base a month ago he has been the sparkplug of the team. There hasn't been a weak point in his fielding, he has hustled continually, and he has delivered many timely blows at bat.

COACH IVAN OLSON is one of those giving Finn much of the credit for the drive of the Robins, whose defeat in Boston yesterday—the third time Ed Brandt has beaten them this season—was only their fourth in their last 21 games. "In my opinion, Finn has made our club," O'son says. "He got a real opportunity to show what he could do and he hasn't missed making good. I don't believe there is a second baseman in the National League who has outplayed him in the last four weeks."

WHEN THEY FACE Lester Sweetland, Cub lefthander, in one of the games of today's double-header at Forbes Field, the Pirates will be up against their worst pitching jinx of the season. Sweetland has beaten them three times, or more defeats than they have suffered at the hands of any other hurler.



Lester Sweetland

In his first victory over Pittsburgh, on April 24, the Bruin southpaw was doing relief duty and pitched only seven and one-third innings, but he started on the other two occasions and went the full distance, downing the Ensmen 9 to 6 on May 25, and 9 to 2 in the morning game of May 30.

NO OTHER PITCHER in the league has succeeded in winning more than two games from the Pirates this season. Seven others have trimmed the Rovers twice, the list being made up of five righthanders and two southpaws.

Those to turn the trick of gaining two decisions over the Forbes Field brigade were Burleigh Grimes and Jess Haines, of the Cardinals; Chalrey Root and Bob Smith, of the Cubs; Fred Fitzsimmons, of the Giants; Tom Zachary, of the Braves, and Bill Clark, of the Robins.

AS WAS GENERALLY expected, England will be the opponent of the United States in the inter-zone tennis finals for the right to meet France for the Davis Cup. The victory of the English team over Czechoslovakia's racqueters was in line with the form sheets, and if the same sheets hold good again, the American players, in view of their success against England's best in the recent Wimbledon tournament, will defeat the European zone winners in the matches starting in Paris next Friday and go on to tackle the French champions for the trophy, their fourth successive year as challengers.

YOU WOULD GATHER from the reported easy manner in which Marcel Thil, French middleweight, defeated Vince Dundee in their 12-round fight in Paris last night, holding a wide margin throughout,

HARD STRUGGLE BEING WON BY GROSKLOSS

His boyhood chums nicknamed him "Howdy the Rowdy," but the snappy appellation should not be taken literally, for the moniker held more affection than any other quality among the playmates of the rough and tumble kid who was destined to win great scholastic and athletic fame, despite his obscure surroundings.

The true story of Howard Hoffman Groskloss, of Sheraden, new Pirate sensation, combines a somewhat strange yet happy mixture of medicine, music, baseball, football and classroom supremacy.

When Howard was a little fellow, his good dad passed away, but Howdy was old enough to know his father wanted him to be either a doctor or a major league baseball star. In memory of his father, and with the kind thoughts of the other loved ones at home, the determined boy may make the grade in the two widely divergent directions. He has a running start on both right now.

CAN TAKE BUMPS

When his buddies tagged him "Howdy the Rowdy," they knew young Groskloss could take his bumps. He has taken a flock of them as he has worked his way to an exceptional education, not to mention the wallops he took on the field of sports.

Not so long ago, this boy stood in the center of a group at picturesque Amherst College and accepted a big loving cup as it was presented by Calvin Coolidge, former president of the United States, who is one of the many prominent alumni of the Massachusetts institution. The award was made to the member of the senior class who had brought the greatest honor to Amherst College, and Howdy the Rowdy was that boy.

About the same time scholastic honors were heaped upon the Pittsburgh kid. Because he had received the best marks in the history of this well-known college, he was signally honored with a

BRAME, GLENN SPENCER GET SLAB DUTY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirates and Cubs clash this afternoon in the first bargain doubleheader of the home season. The rains of yesterday brought a postponement of the third game of the series, and it was moved back to today to help make up the dual bill. Play will get under way at 2 o'clock.

The Pirates have won the two games staged in the series. Moreover, the Buccos have copped six of their last seven battles. The improvement in the play of the club is a result of the smoother performance of the infield since Howdy Groskloss went into action and the spurt of several of the slumping hitters who were batting almost 100 points below their last year's form.

BRAME, SPENCER TO HURL

Ervin Brame and Glenn Spencer, of the home staff, have been nominated for slab duty for the dual attraction of today. Manager Hornsby, of the Bears, will use Lester Sweetland on the mound in the opener, but he has not decided on his starter for the nightcap. It is likely that Pat Malone or Charley Root will grace Fogarty Knoll on this occasion.

The Buccos have their work cut out for them in the immediate future. No less than seven battles are carded in the four successive days beginning with today. Tomorrow will see the Freebooters in a bargain attraction at Cincinnati. After completing their long sport program at Redland Field, the Buccos must hurry back to their home grounds to repel the invasion of the eastern clubs.

PHILS HERE NEXT

The Quakers will be the first of the seaboard rivals to invade the Oakland Orchard. Burt Shotton and his family are scheduled to open a six-game series here Monday. Tuesday will see the two Pennsylvania entries engaged in a doubleheader. Boston, Brooklyn and New York will follow the Quakers into town in the order named.

Larry French, of the Pittsburgh sharpshooting division, appears to be well on the road to recovery following his attack of appendicitis. The star lefthander has been confined to his home for several days, but he may be able

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Folks have asked why President Hoover didn't applaud the Washington team the other day when he came to see us play the Athletics. Well, maybe it's because the Washington people don't have any vote, or maybe he didn't dare to root against the A's on account of Philadelphia being such a strong Republican town. Anyway, the President believes in taking his ball games in neutral, and I wish some of the umpires would get the idea, too.

Nick Altrock

But we are always glad to see Mr. Hoover at our ball park, even if he does come in on a pass. It's a pleasure to play before him, even when we lose.

HAGEN TAKES LEAD IN CANADIAN OPEN PLAY

P. T. A. Inter-Club League Ready to Resume Action This Afternoon

FARRELL MOVES INTO SECOND PLACE

TORONTO, July 11.—(AP.)—The old showman himself, Walter Hagen, led the parade of 77 survivors into the final 36 holes of the Canadian open golf championship today.

The Haig, once again possessed of the magic putting touch that made him famous, sent par scurrying to cover with 68s on his first and second rounds for a 36-hole total of 136 and a lead of one stroke over Johnny Farrell.

Farrell, who has scarcely been in trouble once in the 36 holes he has played over Mississaugua so far, smashed par for the second day in a row when he toured the layout in 68 strokes yesterday. His 69 of the first day gave him a total of 137 strokes.

Third place belonged to Percy Alliss, of Berlin, with 67-71—138, and fourth to the defending champion, Tommy Armour, with 68-72—140.

After yesterday's round, the field was cut to 77 by the elimination of all those more than 20 strokes behind the leaders. All of the United States, British and Canadian favorites qualified for the final 36 holes.

Among the United States entrants, Ted Bishop, of Natick, Mass., had 141; Wiffy Cox, 142; Victor Ghezzi, Rumson, N. J., 143; Ed Dudley, 144; Leo Diegel, 145; Mortie Dutra and Horton Smith, 146; Emmett French, Tony Manero and George McLean, 147; Willie Klein, 149, and Cyril Walker, 151.

Hagen's 68 yesterday was not gained without trouble. He was in frequent trouble off the tee, but his approaches were so deadly and his putting so accurate that these lapses meant nothing.

A'S OWE WIN TO EARNSHAW

Associated Press.

Stout-hearted George Earnshaw apparently has accepted the responsibility for keeping the Philadelphia Athletics in their accustomed position at the top of the American League standing. Few pitchers in modern times have worked harder nor turned in more heroic performances than has Connie Mack's righthanded ace in the first four months of the campaign.

Yesterday the Moose went to the firing line for the third time within six days and pitched the champions to a victory over the New York Yankees in a 14-inning thriller, 8 to 6.

The game marked Earnshaw's twenty-third appearance on the hill this year and gave him his fifteenth victory against four defeats.

There was only the one game in the American League, rain preventing the other scheduled bout at Washington. What activity there was in the National served only to stretch the St. Louis Cardinals' lead over the field. Gabby Street's marksmen scored their third straight victory over the Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 1, while the Brooklyn Robins were being nosed out, 4 to 3, by the Boston Braves.

Primo Posts Bond, Gets Back His Auto

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 11.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera's automobile was returned to him by the Elmira sheriff yesterday after the big boxer had posted bond for $1,500, the amount Harry S. Hechheimer, of New York, says Carnera owes him for legal services. The car was attached Thursday night just before the fighter appeared at a local prize ring to be introduced.

Carnera denied he owed the attorney anything.

The automobile lost a license plate while in the sheriff's hands. It is believed some fight fan took it as a souvenir.

ILLINOIS NET KING FALLS

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP.)—A trio of speedy young southerners battled their way into the semi-final bracket of the Illinois state tennis tournament here yesterday. Another Texan, Bruce Barnes, of Austin, resumed his match with Scott Rexinger, of Chicago, and won one game to take the final set. Rain had halted the match when the score stood one set apiece.

to get out today. It is not likely he will appear in a uniform, but Manager Ens will be glad if he is able to go to the slab next week.

The Pittsburgh flinging corps is in good shape. Ens has three starters ready in Kremer, Meine and Spencer and French is right in this class when well. Brame's form has been disappointing, but the tall righthander has suffered from the ravages of sickness.

Ens stated today that Steve Swetonic was ready to start a game at any time and it is possible that the Native Son may be called upon in the impending flock of dual bills. Charley Wood, Bob Osborn and George Grant also are available for pitching duty.

'NATURAL' BOUT ON OR OFF? YES AND NO

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

There will be a Buck McTiernan-Jimmy Belmont fight at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, one week from next Monday night, despite McTiernan's defeat by Ted Yarosz in their melee at Hickey Park, Millvale, last Thursday night.

There will NOT be a McTiernan-Belmont fight.

Take your pick. That's how the matter stands.

Immediately after the McTiernan-Yarosz battle, Apples Meyers, manager of the Bowl, which signed the "natural" between Buck and his arch-rival, Belmont, only a few days before, said the match was off so far as he was concerned. Yesterday, efforts were being made to salvage it. Bunny Buntach, manager of McTiernan, was ready to go through with it under the original terms of 30 per cent for his protege. He accused the club of being willing to stage the match if he would take a healthy slice in pay and said that unless the original conditions were adhered to he would ask the boxing commission to pass on the matter.

STATUS SCRAMBLED

It is Buntach's contention that the match, which shaped up to the average fan as a more or less easy one for McTiernan when it was made, now takes on the semblance of a closer contest, with a lot of the cash customers who have not been any too favorably inclined toward Buck being likely to turn out to see Belmont make a stab at joining the membership of the Those Who Have Beaten McTiernan Club.

So, you see, the bout is on, or it isn't on. What do you think?

Meanwhile the Bowl is making ready to stage the Tony Herrera-Johnny Jadich battle next Monday night. The billing brings together a couple of topliners in the lightweight class and some snappy boxing and hard hitting are looked for.

MILLVALE RECORD SET

The McTiernan-Yarosz fight drew the largest crowd in the two seasons' history of Hickey Park, the gross gate receipts being $3,660, with the net $3,477. McTiernan received $1,125 for his end, while Yarosz took a small percentage along with his victory, which should lead to bigger and better purses for him in the future.

Marty Gornick, Whitaker lightweight, makes his first start over the 10-round route in half of a double windup card at Dayton, O., Monday night. His opponent has not yet been named. Jimmy Kelly, formerly of the North Side, and Spug Meyers are in the main event.

fellowship and the Phi Beta Kappa key.

The mother of the brilliant boy, Mrs. Eva Groskloss, was a teacher of music and Howard found time at Amherst to make a study of this art. Meanwhile he was the star of the crack baseball team, one of the best halfbacks in New England, a first-grade basketball player and a track athlete. He matriculated at Amherst after finishing at Kiski Prep School and all the while he was going it alone on his own ability to gain an education.

Howdy still loves music. He plays the violin well, and when his ma wanted him to continue his study in this direction he consulted a prominent teacher, who saw a bump on one of his fingers caused by a bad hop on the diamond.

"You'll have to give up baseball at once," said the cultured professor.

And that's the reason why the Groskloss violin now is neglected except when Howdy plays with his sister, Dorothy, who is a clever pianist.

These hot July days Howdy is engrossed in two big things. He has an important date with Jewel Ens each day, and when he gets through with his tasks at the Oakland Orchard he is soon buried in his books on medicine.

Groskloss has completed one year of study at the Yale School of Medicine. He was excused before the examinations in order to help out the Pirates, but the school authorities put him on his honor to take the "exams" at home. He is just finishing up on them, and it is likely he will pass them with his customary high marks.

Howard graduated at Langley High School before entering Kiski. Amherst influences worked on him as he studied at Kiski, and he decided to cast his lot with the famous eastern college. At Amherst he had as his roommate Dwight Morrow, Jr.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Long's Sport Comment

that France has in Thil a real fighter who might be expected to prove a dangerous contender for Mickey Walker's vacated title.

Glove fans, however, will not be entirely convinced until the Frenchman has produced further evidence of class in a visit to this country, which no doubt will follow sooner or later. Other European battlers have been hailed as championship possibilities after defeating American topnotchers, Len Harvey against Dave Shade, for instance, but when they came to the United States they failed to live up to their advance notices. Thil may be another of the same type.

THOUGH 10 ROUNDS is the limit for a fight in Pennsylvania and Illinois it is said that Philadelphia or Chicago will eventually be selected as the scene of the Schmeling-Carnera affair on September 17, with Chicago having the inside track.

Cities in Ohio, New Jersey and Connecticut are announced as being after the match, and Jeff Dickson is reported to want it for London or Paris, but that's probably nothing more than the old ballyhoo to advertise the match and make it look good.

Primo Carnera

IN CONSENTING SO readily to have the bout staged in a place where the limit is 10 rounds, instead of 15, Schmeling and Manager Joe Jacobs are admitting that they share the general belief that Carnera is not to be feared as a challenger. For Schmeling doesn't begin to get going against a high-class opponent until near the end of the tenth round, and does his best work in the latter part of a 15-round contest. In consenting to stake his crown when the distance is to be only 10 frames, Max evidently believes, as does everybody else, that Primo is not going to be dangerous at any stage of the proceedings. Jacobs admits that a route shorter than 15 rounds would not be considered if the challenger were a smart, clever boxer of the Tommy Loughran kind, but says that for a big, slow fellow like Carnera 10 rounds should be more than enough for Schmeling to break him in two with body punches.

JULE POLLOCK, FRITZIE STIFEL COP TITLES

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, July 11.—(AP.)—The title of amateur golf king of the Mountain State today rests with Julius Pollock, of Wheeling, for the ninth time. A hard-driving youth went down before seasoned experience on the thirty-fifth hole of the annual state championship final when Jule took a birdie 4 to beat Fred G. Bannerot, Jr., of Pittsburgh and Charleston, 2 and 1.

FRED PLAYS WELL

They finished the first 18 with Bannerot 3 down. Then Bannerot took two straight from the Wheeling golfer to cut his lead to one, and Pollock's lead was never more than two after that time. Their cards:

FRITZIE BEATS MOTHER

Eighteen years ago, in 1913, Jule Pollock—then just a youngster—won the first West Virginia amateur tournament ever held. He repeated in '14 and '15, and then annexed some more titles in '19, '21, '22, '24 and '28. He did not defend his title in 1929 nor did he compete last year.

The women's title in West Virginia seems to be a family affair. Fritzie Stifel defeated her mother, Mrs. E. W. Stifel, for the second time in as many years for the state championship, winning 3 and 2, as compared to 4 and 3 last year. Their cards:

Out
Miss Stifel	5	3	5	4	3	5	6	4	4—41
Mrs. Stifel	7	3	5	5	5	5	6	4	5—45

Dreyfuss Denies Bucs Seeking Art Shires

Owner Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today denied the local club has made a bid for the services of Art Shires, now with the Milwaukee American Association club. By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League luminaries will wind up four weeks' lay-off today with complete program of action for the 16-team bidivisional circuit. Interim occasioned by the Western Pennsylvania championships at Stanton Heights last month and by Independence Day has left the district racquet group keen to resume competition and this fact, plus the point that several squads will be battling for vantage position in the trophy chase, renders heated skirmishing a certainty.

In Section I, with tussle for possession of the Davis Keg at high degree of warmth, the titled Edgewood host invades the East Pittsburgh precinct of Westinghouse to defend first place in a contest that the powerful Suburbanites should cop, but not without stiff opposition from a rehabilitated Electric outfit that again boasts services of such performers as Butler, Clark, Sawin and Clardy.

STIFF OPPOSITION

Meanwhile, the P. A. A. and College Hill aggregations, at present deadlocked for second position, are slated to visit the rectangles of South Hills, and University Club, respectively.

On form to date, College Hill faces much the stiffer proposition, particularly inasmuch as it is virtually assured that the P. A. A.-South Hills seance will be switched from the Mount Washington enclosure to the Winged Head ballwick because of poor condition of the Hill-top turf.

Stanton Heights journeys to Mount Lebanon to round out the upper group program, the joust looming as the probably most evenly matched on the bill.

BELLEVUE PLAYS CHAMPS

Section II finds the loop-leading Bellevue array entertaining Westinghouse Seconds, 1930 sectional champions. The engagement marks the North Boroughs crew's initial home venture and, incidentally, its toughest test thus far.

Duquesne Library and College Avenue have notch number two at stake in their debate in the Librarians' area, with chances just about 50-50. In the remaining fracases, Washington Heights reigns favorite over the youthful Rockwood host in the latter's home opener, while the visit of South Hills Seconds to West Penn Power offers rather difficult contract for the Mount cavorters.

Should a Girl Accept Gifts From Her Boss?

Should a working girl accept presents from her boss? And if she's engaged, should she go to lunch with him—"just as a friend?"

Julie's boy friend thinks she shouldn't . . . so the war is on . . . with both of them refusing to give an inch. Here's the whole story. Read it, and tell us who you think is right.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"My fiance and I have a problem we wish you would help us on. We are engaged, after knowing each other for nearly a year, and, except for this one argument that we can't seem to settle, we get along wonderfully together.

"You see I work as secretary to a big wholesale merchandise dealer, and he often gives me sample merchandise which has been used in the trade. Also, when there are things about the business that we have to talk over, we often eat lunch together just as two men who are associates and friends might do. Also, he has been in the habit of bringing me a gift each time he goes to New York on a buying trip.

"You understand there is nothing personal at all in any of these things. They're not what you call 'attentions.' They are merely things that he gives me in appreciation of services rendered in the line of business . . . and going to lunch together is merely a way of being able to talk over business problems without being interrupted by callers or the phone.

FIANCE DISAGREES

"But Bob and I can't seem to agree about it at all, and it is getting to be a sore spot between us. We're constantly at loggerheads over it. He says it is all very improper, and should cease at once.

"On the other hand, I know that, if I refused to take these things or go to lunch with my boss, the latter would think I was a silly idiot.

"Who do you think is right? Please help me. I seem to be 'between the devil and the deep sea' myself. I don't know what to do. Bob's attitude seems silly, and even insulting to me, but he is terribly serious about it.

"JULIE."

QUESTIONABLE

What's your answer, Stranger? Once upon a time, only one answer could have been possible. Ladies didn't accept presents from gentlemen, under any circumstances, unless said gentlemen belonged to the family—or expected to.

And that old convention was based on good, sound, common sense, because accepting favors always puts us under a certain amount of obligation, especially if we can't return them.

But how about it in 1931?

Is it okay for an up-to-date modern business woman to accept gifts from her boss, as Julie is accepting them?

Is it okay for her to lunch with him now and then, even if she is engaged—or perhaps married?

Maybe you think it is. But suppose the positions were reversed?

If Bob had a woman employer who handed him favors, as Julie's boss is handing them to her, would Julie have a right to feel uneasy? If it's "sauce for the goose," isn't it also "sauce for the gander?"

Think it over, seriously, and tell us your conclusion.

'BEING BEAUTIFUL' -:- There are many ways -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

All of us are feeling in both head and heart a vague but positive change—not in noise, alack-a-day—but in many other forms, of the world's ways and character. It's splended news, for many and many of us have been struggling with a terrible inability to get along with the hardened and unpleasant character with which old man world seemed to have emerged from the Big War.

No greater change would be more embraced with open arms by the more sensitive, even by the very maker of BEAUTIFUL GIRLS, be it he or she, than that there should be a broader sense come over the world again, of just WHAT is beautiful. Everywhere we have looked for a weary while now, is just a beautiful, empty face looking at us, perfect as a gem, above a body posed in the same old lines, busy, just contemplating its own beauty. And worrying about it. For beneath it, or somewhere about it, subtly, or garishly, is the advice, almost agonized, "BE BEAUTIFUL." Almost every printed page is saying, "be beautiful or you cannot be loved!"

It's a fine state of affairs! There are other ways of being beautiful in the world besides worshiping your own, and cracking your heart trying to be that way. The invariable lace shawl that goes with the aforesaid millions of beautiful figures and faces, is growing amusing as well as irritating.

No one has loved a beautiful face more than the disgruntled writer of this, perhaps no one has offended oftener in making them. But they have been, I hope, just one of the bright beads on the string of pleasure and beauty I have offered, not the production entire!

Be beautiful, yes, but try the different ways; there are a myriad—all very effective. Showing yourself with your own baby for the world to admire is one of the most successful.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The "Best Way" to Eat Artichokes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I have been discussing and trying out the best way to eat artichokes, but we cannot agree on a convenient and yet pleasant manner—to the eye. I am more than certain that you will be our life-saver.

FLORENCE.

Here I come rushing with the suggestion that I hope will help you and your sister to enjoy this most delicious and delicately-flavored of vegetables.

Peel off one leaf at a time, dip the tip of the leaf nearest the stalk in the melted butter or whatever sauce is served with the artichoke. Then scrape off between the teeth the edible portion at the end of the leaf. Lay the remainder of the leaf on the plate. The heart of the artichoke is eaten with a fork.

There Are Several Solutions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A is going to have a big church wedding soon. Her father is dead and she has neither brothers nor any relatives to give her away. But the groom-to-be has two brothers; one is going to be the best man. Would it be proper to have the other brother give the bride away?

THANK YOU.

No, it is out of order for the bride to have a relative of the groom present her in marriage. Is there in her family's circle of friends an older man who has known her family for many years whom she could give this high privilege of presenting her in marriage? Or would she like to have her mother present her in marriage Or, if she wishes, she may omit this part of the ceremony.

Perfect for Traveling

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What kind of dress is worn for dinner and for lunch?

If one wears a tweed suit on train is it all right to wear this to dine.

2. When my mother and I dine together, do we order separately?

3. What type of dress is best to get for all-around summer dress wear? DOROTHY.

1. A woman wears to the dining room the dress that she is traveling in. A tweed suit is perfect for traveling, except in weather that makes this inappropriate.

2. This is as you wish. The head waiter in the dining car will give you the menu and pad and pencil, and the order is written on this. You write the order, either for yourself or for both.

3. I couldn't answer this question, for it would depend on the kind of life you lead and the purpose to which the dress must be put. Crepes, chiffons, cottons . . . are all good this year.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"All Bound 'Round" Is Harmful to the Body

Exercise is always prescribed for the normal adult. As a rule, some form of exercise is recommended even for one who does not feel well.

The normal baby is one of the most active and energetic of athletes. When awake, it is constantly exercising. This is accomplished by closing and unclosing the hands, twisting the body, by stretching and yawning.

In fact, when the baby cries it takes exercise. Do not discourage crying. Of course no one delights in excessive crying. But crying in moderation is beneficial because it enables the baby to expand the lungs thoroughly and to use the arms and legs.

Never dress an infant in excessive clothing. Too many dresses, shawls or blankets, prevent the child from rolling and thus deprives him of a certain amount of exercise.

It is not advisable to allow a child to remain in one position too long. He should never be left in his chair or carriage for too long a period. Never fasten the clothing or blankets in such a way that free motion is prevented.

It is a good plan to permit the baby to exercise on a soft, warm blanket, without any clothes on. Take off the clothing and permit the youngster to kick and squirm to its heart's delight. Ten minutes twice a day will do much to promote health and strength. Be sure the room is warm and that there are no draughts.

I can think of no better gift than a play pen or play yard for a child of 10 months. This device gives the growing child opportunity to crawl and eventually to stand and walk. In a play pen the baby can do itself no damage.

Please remember that a baby should not walk until it has developed the proper muscular strength. Forced walking causes the legs to become bowed. If the muscles are not properly developed the child will become permanently bow-legged.

Do not be discouraged if your baby learns to walk a week or so later than your neighbor's baby. It will soon learn to walk if left alone.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Mother Graham Regrets Reproof of Junior

When I saw Mother Graham's startled, questioning look at Junior as he made his absurd swaggering comment upon her reproof for waking his baby sister, I knew exactly what her reactions would be, and the next second justified my mental prediction. Her hand dropped from the carriage, which she had been gently jogging in an endeavor to hush the baby to sleep again, her body straightened itself with a jerk, and she rushed across to Junior with the agility of a woman half her years, and, bending over, caught him to her.

"Oh, my darling boy! My own pet! Granzie didn't mean to be cross. And your nose isn't out of joint. Don't ever say those horrible words again! Do you think anybody in the world could ever take the place of my dear little Richard Second?"

She raised her head and sent a defiant look toward the baby carriage as absurdly childish as Junior's tapping of the nose, which he had just told Roderick was so far "out of joint" that it was "all over at one side" of his face.

"You know Granzie loves you best, don't you, my pet?" she persisted.

Junior wriggled uneasily in her embrace, and though his grandmother, emotionally blinded, did not realize it, the rest of us knew that he was horribly embarrassed by her appeal and her caresses. To me, trying hard to be just to my mother-in-law, though my sympathy went out to my little son, the sight of his discomfiture was like the fall of the curtain upon an act of a play. My boy's small-childhood was definitely over. He was on the way to big-boyhood, and through my heart I felt the knife thrust of that realization.

Glad, indeed, was I in that moment, that I always have been chary of caressing Junior before others. I have an instinctive aversion for mothers who make an exhibition of either their petting or their discipline, and though I am sure my small son never has had reason to complain of the demonstrative warmth of my affection when we are alone, he has understood that "before folks" I do not indulge in the foolish but soul-satisfying little endearments in which mothers and little children revel.

If my mother-in-law could only realize that this emotional remorse was as bad for her small grandson from a psychological standpoint as was the sharp reproof she had given him. I saw the reflection of this thought in my husband's eyes and those of the rest of the group upon the veranda. But it was one of those moments when words of any kind are worse than useless, and, not sensing either Junior's embarrassment or our uneasy disapproval, she repeated her question, adding an imperative, "Answer Granzie."

"Aw," he burst out at last, "I don't want you to love me best. You must love her best, 'cause she's so little. Dad and Mums told me I must love her best of anybody in all the world, better than them or you, or anybody, 'cause she needs lovings so much. And—and, I do, and you must."

He wriggled out of her embrace, and with a half-swaggering, half abashed, "C'm on, Rod, let's go look at the puppies," started for the veranda door. Instinctively I shot a glance of appeal at Harry Underwood—the threat of the Chinese messenger ever before me—but he already had put himself by accident between the boys and the door, and stopped their advance with an arresting hand upon each coat collar.

"It's my opinion you both need to go to a hospital," he said, "when you're ready to pass up this fruit punch and Katie's cakes."

Katie, who I knew had missed nothing of the disturbing incident, though she had demurely busied herself with arranging the tea tables, now added her shrill reproach to Mr. Underwood's.

"Und I frost dose leetle cakes shoost vay you boys like dem," she said, but the youngsters needed no other encouragement. With delighted little gurgles they whirled and took the places on either side of me, to which I gestured them, and I saw happily that for the time Junior had completely forgotten the shattering of a childish illusion which had been his.

But I was afraid the memory would return to him, and in my mother-in-law's stricken old face I saw the same fear. But there was nothing I could say to comfort her without emphasizing the mistake she had made, and I was glad, indeed, when, through the gate whirled the rather dilapidated, but still serviceable, car of the Ticer family, the valued neighbors, who are also our faithful helpers when the labors of Katie and Jim need supplementing on the farm.

"It doesn't need three guesses to name their errand," Dickey said in a low voice as the car stopped and the three Ticers, with much hand-waving, came toward us, and his mother, usually most captious, because of the exuberance which she deems undue familiarity of our neighbors, replied with nervous eagerness.

"Of course, they want to be here for the surprise."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Soft corns, appearing between the toes, must be covered with talcum and absorbent cotten. As long as the skin surface is moist, corns will be stubborn and persistent. Scaling flesh between the toes usually signifies the presence of ringworm which requires medical attention. Ringworm is contagious. The germs lurk in bath mats.

A dry climate is tough on hair and complexion. Both need plenty of oil, much more than is necessary in a moist atmosphere. Olive oil or mineral oil can be used on the scalp. Cosmetic counters offer an endless variety of creams for the complexion. Good idea to have two, a cold cream for daytime application, a heavy emollient to use at night.

Girls who fare forth into the busy mart and bring home the bacon find good looks an asset, but they must consider that there are different ways of being good looking. A superintendent of employment in a large department store says that he likes the kind of beauty that suggests intelligence, a pleasant smile that is the outcome of good nature and amiability, clear eyes which typify quickness of thought, an erect carriage that is natural to a highly energized young woman. There you are!

Laughter and nonsense make life smoother and women sweeter. Where there is gayety in the home there are individuals who have a hundred year lease on youth, and all the radiant evidences of youth. No long, dour faces. Nice round, smiling ones. Women who live in an atmosphere of peace and happiness carry a paid-up insurance against the ravages of time. The atmosphere is largely of their own making. They are the balance wheels. They know how to stop an argument before it gets a start. They understand how to keep the papa from growling and how to make the home a cherished haven for the children. They are the salt of the earth.

Household Hints

For washing and rinsing delicate colored materials, Epsom salts is excellent. Dissolve one teaspoonful of the salts in each gallon of water; the most delicate shades will neither fade nor run.

It is well to remember that greater heat is required for layer than for loaf cake when placing the pastry into the oven. When a cake rises very high in the middle it is a sign that the oven heat is not even. If it sinks in the middle the oven is too cold.

When selecting wall paper, be careful to avoid large designs for small rooms and always select your paper in the daylight, so you may be positive of your colors. If possible, have a couple of rolls of paper placed side by side in order to get the effect of a larger surface.

When refilling a feather pillow crush a small block of camphor and mix in with the feathers. It will help to preserve the feathers and keep the pillow from having any musty odor for a long time.

If you are substituting drippings for butter when baking a cake, add the juice of a lemon. The drippings will never taste if this is done and the cake will have the same flavor and texture as if it were cooked with fresh butter.

When the frying pan has been used for onions or fish and your meal is sometimes ruined by the dread of cleansing it when the time comes, let it soak in a strong solution of ammonia and water while you're dining.. The solution will not only make the pan wash more easily, but will remove the odor.

Your Boy and Older Men

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Up to a certain point the mother seems to be the chief sculptor in forming the character of her sons. But as they get older, get into school, and on football teams, and into fraternities, on debating teams, into Boy Scout work, or at the point where they accompany perhaps dad and another adult on fishing trips, the inspiration of the older man—the ideal the boy craves for without knowing it—will affect him more deeply than anything you might say to the lad or try to do for him.

Would thousands of boys be building miniature airplanes or gliders, if a plane had been automatically started and without the touch of man's hands reached France? I think not. It was the hero element—the man — that gripped boyish imagination with the utmost enthusiasm.

Having the opportunity of hearing a kindly but judicial man talk on criminology lately, has inspired a young friend of mine to study penal systems with the idea of getting into that type of work. No book, no treaties on prison work could have inspired him. It was the personality of the man behind the words which captured his interest.

Another high school boy has been in a hospital under a physician who has a highly magnetic personality along with a vast knowledge of his subject and a kindly, simple way of explaining things to his young patients. Under him they may flinch with pain but grit their teeth just to merit his kindly hand on the young shoulders and his cheery: "That's the spirit, lad. Didn't take long, did it?"

A few days ago my young friend said unexpectedly to his father, who has been a bit worried because the boy has never expressed a desire for any special vocation, "I want to be a doctor, dad, so I can be like Dr. ———"

If a robot with steel hands had swung over his bed to adjust dressings and to operate on the boy, would he have been interested in medicine, no matter how efficient the machine for dressing may have been? I think not. It is the personality of the man which has inspired the boy with the gratifying wish to be a doctor like this one.

So be not only careful, but go out of your way to have your older sons meet the right kind of men. And that doesn't mean necessarily men of wealth, but men who have a sincere interest in their work, intensive will to succeed, men who are four-square. It will have a weightier impression on your son than you can imagine.

The Cardiac Clinic

By DOROTHY ROE

They say that alimony-collecting is the fifth largest industry in the United States—or maybe it's the tenth.

The statistics don't matter, but the statement does.

It's a cryptic commentary on the age we live in, and one of the principle reasons for the new furore about the tottering social structure.

The American home is gone, say the moralists. The family has disintegrated. And it's a wise child who knows his own father.

My opinion is that it's all an expression of the restlessness of the age, and that it can't be helped.

The trend of the times is toward self-expression, freedom, and all the rest of it.

It used to be that a man and wife would spend a lifetime together in mutual dislike. Now they go to Reno and take a fresh start.

I'm not plugging for bigger and better divorces. I'm just saying that divorce is a necessary evil, and we might as well recognize it.

You can't expect everyone to guess right. Some of us are bound to be wrong in our matrimonial hazards. And when we find we have made an error, the only honest thing is to try to correct it.

The ladies and gentlemen of the old school hold that the home should be kept together, come what may. Think of the children, they implore.

And to the old guard I would like to put a question—is it better for a child to be brought up in a home of constant bickering than in a home of divorce?

Does it promote a normal attitude toward life for a child to live with a mother and father who dislike each other openly? Will such an atmosphere give him a chance toward any understanding of the beauty and serenity possible in marriage?

To be surrounded by discord and hatred during his formative years is likely to warp a child's entire outlook on life.

I say it's much better for the mother and father to go their separate ways and let the child know each as individuals and not as battle factions.

The basic factors of human nature aren't any different now from the way they've always been. It's the new high-speed gear of living that precipitates restlessness. The world goes at a faster pace, men live at a new nervous tension—more divorces is the inevitable result.

But it's no reason for saying that humanity is crumbling. People are just as happy now as they ever were — perhaps happier.

KINSEY BEATS FRENCH STAR IN UPSET

FOREST HILLS, L. I., July 11.—(AP.)—One upset, the downfall of Albert Burke, of France, by Howard O. Kinsey, California, and former Davis Cup star, spiced the professional lawn tennis battle yesterday. In the quarter-finals of the fifth tournament for the championship of the United States, the famous European bowed to the chop stroke of the American. Kinsey's victory was scored 10-8, 8-10, 6-4, 6-4. Burke was seeded No. 2 on the foreign side.

All the other singles went according to form. Vincent Richards, the three times champion, conquered Robert Seller, the Californian, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

William T. Tilden II, former king of the amateurs, mastered J. Emmett Pare, the young Chicagoan, 7-5, 7-5, 6-4.

BRITONS DAVIS CUP VICTORS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 11.—(AP.)—England won the right to meet the United States team in the interzone finals of Davis Cup play by defeating Czechoslovakia in the doubles match yesterday.

England's surprising youngsters, George Hughes and Fred Perry, teamed to ship the Czech doubles combination of Roderick Menzel and F. Marsalek, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. Bunny Austin and Perry also won their singles matches.

Two singles will be played today, but loss of both would only cut the British margin of victory to 3-2.

JUST PLAYING AROUND -:- By Lewis Allen Browne

Pretty Model Angered by Warning of Suitor

CHAPTER XIV.

"Dolly Hawkins?" Mr. Malvern repeated.

Mrs. Dutton was watching him with what seemed to me best expressed as "eagle eyes."

And if Forrest Malvern wasn't surprised and embarrassed over my question, then I was very much mistaken.

"Yes, Dolly," I said.

"Oh, Dolly Hawkins—pretty little kid. I remember her now," Malvern said, "always jolly. Haven't seen her for a long while. I think she had a home upstate. Probably she got tired of city life and went back to the sticks amid the cows and clover and all that sort of rot, as the popular songs have it. No doubt she's married to some farmer boy by this time."

"Strange she never said a word to any of us," I persisted.

I didn't like the way Forrest Malvern spoke of her, as if he could scarcely remember her, and he used to be crazy about her, and go everywhere with her. Dolly had told me herself that she would marry Mr. Malvern or know the reason why.

"Forrest can't help knowing oodles of silly girls," Mrs. Dutton said. She almost cooed as she spoke. I didn't like her. I had a hunch that she could be very much of a wildcat under her veneer of sweetness and her velvety voice.

"Nonsense," Mr. Malvern protested.

IS PUZZLED

"But it's true—silly little girls throw themselves at him, but Forrest is wise; he understands their selfish motives," Mrs. Dutton went on.

"Don't chatter such nonsense, Fannie," Mr. Malvern scolded.

I had to leave to get into some more gowns for the next showing. I puzzled over Mr. Malvern's pretense of scarcely knowing Dolly Hawkins, and decided that he was sweet on the gay little widow, Fanny Dutton, and didn't want anything brought up about former sweethearts.

Chubb Osmund drifted in that evening. He beamed all over and smirked and winked when he saw me.

A little later when we crossed the mirror-floor of the platform and marched slowly up and down the runway out in the crowd, in our advance season bathing suits, I thought poor fat Chubb would pass out, his eyes popped so, and he grinned so convulsively.

Forrest Malvern stood close to the runway and stared at me. He smiled also, and winked. I pretended not to notice the wink. Then he whispered something to Mrs. Dutton, who was clinging to him as though afraid she would lose him. Whatever he whispered was about me, Mrs. Dutton looked at me, openly sneered, and shook her head as she whispered back to him.

As if I cared.

Then I saw Molly!

How she was decked out!

She had been wearing swell clothes and good jewelry for months before she quit the Miers establishment, but at this time she seemed to be just pouring out of an evening gown, she was so plump. With her was Maj. Boyden.

MALVERN RETURNS

He recognized me and smiled and nodded.

Molly stared at me, grinned and then seemed to be trying to drag Maj. Boyden away, as if his steady staring at me annoyed her.

During intermission I found Molly and asked her how she was and what she was doing.

"I'm swell, Katie, and minding my own business," was her peculiar answer.

"Just what is your business?" I asked, pointedly.

"Playing around and having one swell time—can you trump that one, little sly fox?" was her comeback.

"I don't want to trump it, dearie," I assured her.

On the last evening of the fashion show Forrest Malvern was there alone.

He smirked at me whenever he got a chance. During one of the intermissions I wore the little blue and gold model out with the crowd. Part of the game was for some of the models to mingle with the crowd during the musical intermissions and give the people a closer view of the gowns.

It was during this intermission that Malvern hunted me up. I was going about with Viola at the time. I introduced them. Mr. Malvern began to pour out compliments.

"Your little widow friend didn't seem to approve of me so heartily," I reminded him.

"Mrs. Dutton? Oh, she's just an old-time acquaintance," he remarked, carelessly, and then he turned to me with eager eyes.

"Look here, Katie, you shouldn't be hiding yourself from me like this—we've got to be better friends. Why haven't you looked me up?"

"Why should I, Mr. Malvern? The last I knew of you, you and Dolly Hawkins were like that!" I crossed my fingers to indicate how chummy they had been.

"Well, Dolly is out of the picture now—but you certainly outshone every other model here."

Viola grinned. She had a great sense of humor.

"Thanks, awfully," she said. "Present company excepted." Mr. Malvern said, hastily, but he slipped me a wink.

"Can't I see you some place, Kitty?" he begged.

"Right here—or on the floor of the Miers establishment—if you come to buy gowns by wholesale—"

"Be nice to me, Kitty. I'm serious about it—I want to be one of your pals." Mr. Malvern was decidedly eager about it.

WEARS WINNING GOWNS

"Sweet of you, Mr. Malvern; but I'm so busy I have no time to pal around. My father died—I have to help support quite a little crowd," I told him. It wasn't true then, for Cora was doing more than her share since she was working, trying to make up for the year or more that half of my earnings I gave to her.

"Those little worries are easily adjusted—"

The signal came and Viola and myself had to rush back to change for the next showing.

"I don't like him so much that I'd die if he went to China to live," Viola said, in her flippant way.

"He's nice, honestly he is," I defended; "he's wealthy and good company."

"Perhaps—but to me he looks like one of the sort of men who think they are the best answer to a maiden's prayer—as if he believed that he ought to have a bodyguard to keep the girls from surrounding him."

I laughed at her and soon forgot about Forrest Malvern.

Mr. and Mrs. Miers had been voted three awards for their creations, and I had worn two of them! Naturally, I was proud and excited.

The next day Mrs. Miers handed me a hundred dollars.

"Me and Milton think you should have it—if it wasn't for you we wouldn't got no awards on them two gowns," she explained.

The months passed rapidly.

Thad was here and there, seemingly always on the go, but there never was a week when he was in the city that he wasn't with me.

It was like the old days again, and he was wonderful with me, making mad love, kissing me, telling me how much he loved me. A few weeks of this and I knew that he would be asking me to marry him. I dreamed of it almost every night—of the swell city home, country home, servants, cars, trips abroad—Oh, I dreamed and imagined every sort of luxury, a long happy life of just playing around!

And then my sister Cora married her old-time friend, Mr. Parker.

I didn't blame her. He owned a store in Garden City. He had a home and he loved Cora. Cora had been a widow nearly seven years for she married when she was 18.

BECOMES ANGRY

I arranged with my chum, Viola Carson, that we would get a little kitchenette apartment and live together.

We would be able to save a lot of money, I thought, and it would be a swell place for Thad to call. Besides, I felt that before long Thad would insist that I marry him—as if he would have to insist very long or plead very hard to get me to consent.

After Cora was married, Peter Thompson dropped in to see me. Cora had whispered that I ought to marry Peter. Evidently he had asked her to put in a good word for him. I laughed at Cora's suggestion.

"I'm going to propose again, Kitty," Peter said when he had me alone for a few minutes.

"Oh Peter, no—don't let's go through that again," I pleaded. "I don't want to marry now," I went on, telling a sort of fib, "I want to have a good time, to play around."

"Kitty," Peter said, with great earnestness, "don't think so much of that sort of thing—or else one of these days you will play around once too often!"

"What do you mean?" I demanded.

"You are no saint, you're just human like any other girl," he answered, looking at me with his great keen eyes as if trying to read my mind.

"If you think—" I started to speak shrilly.

"Now be sensible, Kitty, you know you wouldn't be the first good girl to go wrong!"

I drew back my hand to slap him.

(Does Peter's remark cause a break between him and Kitty? Read Monday's fine installment.)

DAILY SHORT STORY

Lantern's Light

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Screen Director Proposes to Girl Seeking Career

Ina pulled her light wrap up around white shoulders that gleamed like satin in the candle light. The cocoanut grove was crowded. Cigaret smoke drifted like a mist on purple moonlight. At the far end of the dance floor, from an arch of light, descended the steps from the hotel foyer, bearing a constant tide of beautiful women, and men in dinner coats. From the jungle of cocoanut palms, monkeys, chattering, reached greedy little fingers down for cake, and scarlet birds swinging on iron hoops, looked bored and aloof.

All the magic of the grove at midnight was lost on Ina. Her eyes, wide with wonder and admiration, lingered, intent, on Lew Hamilton's dark lean face. They had been two hours at the business of supper—not that it had been time wasted. Lew had been talking about himself for one hour and 45 minutes of that time.

So far Ina's technique had worked perfectly. Her knowledge of masculine psychology covered a multitude of things she didn't know on other subjects. All she needed was a chance to meet Lew Hamilton, and she'd do the rest. Of course, she had to thank Cleo for that. A director as big as Lew, wasn't so easy for an extra girl to meet, but Cleo had known him since before their Hollywood days. Cleo was her next door neighbor.

"If all you want's a chance to meet Lew—okay. I can fix that, but your technique will sure be great if you wheedle a break out of him. He's woman wise—hard-boiled," Cleo had confided between sips of tea from a broken handle cup.

Well, Cleo had fixed that up. That was a week ago—now, Ina knew the story of Lew's life. She knew all about his young brother he'd put through college, and his old mother, and his sister Agnes who had four kids and a good-for-nothing husband. She had found out, too, that Lew was clean and fine and rather big. She was also aware that he thought she was a bit wonderful. What man wouldn't. Here was a girl that appreciated all his fine points—believed in the things he dreamed of doing, marveled at what he had accomplished. Just how she was stressing this point. She leaned nearer.

DIRECTOR WISE

"I still don't see how you managed it," she said in an awed whisper.

"Why you're the biggest director in Hollywood," she added with just the right shade of adoration in look and voice.

Lew blew a ring of smoke up to join the purple mist that floated in the moonlight. He looked at her through narrowed lids, his dark eyes amused. Suddenly he leaned forward and laid his hand over hers on the table.

"Ina, your technique's perfect. I've fallen for it lots of times." He grinned across at her.

"But you're a sweet kid," he added swiftly.

Ina flushed, there was a sweep of dark lashed lids downward, and she bit her lip. She must have bungled the game badly for him to call her hand.

"I won't say you've failed, exactly, but it won't get you the break you're looking for. You see, my male stars pick their own support. That lets me out, it's easier that way," he added drily.

SORRY FOR ACT

He nodded toward a table where Jimmy Carlton, the lead in "Broadway Here I Come," was smiling into the eyes of a tall blonde. There was interest and approval in every line of his handsome face.

"From all appearances the blonde gets the next break," Lew remarked casually.

So—that was that. Ina blinked back a tear. She didn't want him to think she was a schemer. She wondered why she gave a whoop what he thought—just as if she didn't know. Lew's eyes were on her, she didn't dare meet his gaze. Suddenly his fingers tightened over hers.

"Let's go," he said abruptly.

He called the waiter and paid the check. His car, he said, was parked somewhere around the Ambassador driveway. In silence he led her through the lobby, out on the rose-bordered walk and past the swimming pool. They found the car, and drove out through the great Ambassador gates into Wilshire. Lights of Los Angeles were everywhere, blinking weirdly. Lighted towers of a theater played white searchlights into the city. Spotlights on the villas against the shadowy mountains.

Lew was so still—so quiet, and Ina, who should have known exactly what to say under the circumstances, went panicky. She wanted to tell Lew she didn't care a darn about the break, she just wanted oh, gosh, what was the use. She had queered herself with him. He had seen through her little game. She wished she had never heard of Hollywood.

They were nearing Poincettia street. The French village looked quaint and sweet in the moonlight. The tiny, two-room houses with their gay colored lanterns hanging outside their doors, crowded around the flagstone yard, looked like a stage setting. Lew parked the car and they walked back along the flagstones to her house.

"Not angry because I forced your hand a bit? Lew asked suddenly.

Ina didn't answer. She stood leaning against the door in the light of the yellow lantern. There were tears in her eyes, she raised them suddenly to his, not caring if he did see. Somehow, she had lost track of the required technique at this stage of the game. Lew had reached for her hands and closed them into his.

"I'm sorry about the break—if you're sold on a career." His voice was husky.

"I'm not—not really," she broke in unevenly. She didn't care a darn about the break—not now. She only wanted him not to look at her so seriously—not to think she was cheap and little.

She had wanted a break. She wanted a career more than anything in the world. She had gone through months of heartache and disappointment. For years she had worked and dreamed and built toward that career. She couldn't deny she had brought every trick she knew to bear on Lew, with one point in view.

Now she looked at him, strange and silent. He was judging her. He couldn't help thinking she was small and mean, and he was trying to be kind to her. He said she was a sweet kid. She forced back the tears. In the swaying lace of the pepper tree above the roof, a mocking bird called. Somewhere another answered. With a quick move Lew took her in his arms. His lips were against her face. It was sudden—unexpected to them both.

TECHNIQUE WORKS

"Listen, honey—I'm not sure just what you were after, with that technique of yours—but it worked. Whatever you wanted to begin with—what we both want now is an even break."

He was holding her close. After all technique is only helpful up to a certain point.

"If I dared to think that you loved me—that you'd marry me," his voice choked down.

Ina was silent—the kind that gives consent.

"Are you sure you aren't really keen on a career. A girl with a flare for that kind of life—" Lew paused, his tone was troubled.

Ina interrupted with a little laugh.

"Is not a good matrimonial bet," she finished for him.

"Well, there are ways of finding out for yourself — if you know what I mean." Her face was flushed, eager, very close to his.

She was astonished at her own boldness.

For a brief instant Lew looked down at her in the light of the yellow lantern. Then it was quite evident that he did, moreover, he was convinced that no matter what kind of break she was after, an even break suited her down to the ground.

"City Slickers"

Their Dupes Are Not Always from the Rural Regions. Brief Comment on Local News.

There is a reminder, in the permit given Frances Bove, an alleged agent of Mike DeRosa, Twelfth Ward Republican chairman, to build a refreshment stand in Highland Park, of the old story of the New York "city slicker" who sold lots in Central Park to a visitor from the country. It looks very much as if in the Bove case, too, city property was disposed of by someone whose moral right to dispose of it was at least questionable.

The question of Mayor Kline's right to dispose of the site to Frances Bove is raised by the fact that Mrs. Stella Stewart, who had previously applied to the Department of Public Works for a lease for the same location and for the same purpose, says she was refused on the ground that a refreshment stand there would mar the view. If it was improper to let her have the site it was equally improper to let Frances Bove have it.

Assuming that the Department of Public Works was right and that a barbecue stand at that point spoils the beauty of the landscape, it is the people of Pittsburgh who have chiefly suffered from the deal. The moral of the story is that the dupes of the "city slickers" are not always from the rural regions.

It is a fair inference that Frances Bove was given the concession after Mrs. Stewart's application had been rejected because of Mike DeRosa's political influence as a ward chairman. He is a Kline henchman, and Kline makes no bones of the fact that his motto is, "To the victor belong the spoils."

The spoils given DeRosa, in the form of the Highland Park concession, belong, not to Mayor Kline but to the citizens and taxpayers of Pittsburgh. And it would have only been just to the citizens, after it was decided to grant a lease of the refreshment stand site, to grant it, since there was more than one applicant, to the highest bidder. If that was inexpedient the first applicant should have received the lease, if willing to pay the rental demanded.

Pittsburgh is not the only municipality in Allegheny County whose citizens need protection from the administration, if assertions made by the Citizens' Committee of McKees Rocks are credible. The committee, seeking reforms in the borough government, has called for the state police "to protect the citizens from the borough police." The insinuation is that the borough police know something about the explosion in the home of one of the leaders of the reform movement.

Firmly believing that a bomb was set off with a view to terrorizing the committee and silencing the demand for municipal reforms, the McKees Rocks crusaders show determination nevertheless to carry on their work. That is the right attitude to take, and the attitude that loyal Americans are expected to take. Bombs may cow foreigners, but the time has not yet come when Yankees can be thus intimidated.

In the investigation of bomb outrages not ordinary police but keen-witted detectives should be employed. The many unsolved crimes in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County indicate a lack of such operatives. The county and municipal authorities should search for detective skill in the police force and elsewhere, and when they find it should reward and encourage it.

A commendable spirit is shown by the Curtiss-Wright Airport Corporation in its announcement that 25,000 additional square yards of runways, aprons and taxi strips will be installed at Bettis Field. The work is to be done, it says, in pursuance of its policy of keeping ahead of flying requirements at its airports.

We have made such progress in aviation that the things that were new-fangled when people still young were younger now seem quaint or even antique. You will be interested in the picture of an old-fashioned airplane to be published in the "Remember?" department of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph's Gravure Section tomorrow.

How long will it be before the present marvels of aviation are passe? Not very long, perhaps. We are gasping at the feat of Post and Gatty in flying around the world in eight days, but Karl H. von Wiegand describes in the "March of Events" section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph a German inventor's plan for a rocket-plane flight from Berlin to New York in one hour!

There is good philosophy in the Pennsylvania Superior Court's decision that a man struck by a golf ball on the Schenley Park course is not entitled to damages. If every shot played by a golfer, the court says, went to the point where he intended it to go, every player would be perfect and the whole pleasure of the game would be lost. The same reasoning can be applied to other things besides golf.

Lancaster County, Pennsylvania's garden spot, has called off its county fair this year, because the fair takes about $30,000 out of the county in the form of race purses and concessionaire's profits, and it is felt the county cannot stand such a drain. It is a pity, because Lancaster is our leading agricultural county and the fair has educational value for all Pennsylvania farmers.

Praise is due the Welfare Fund in coming to the rescue of needy school children in Allegheny County by providing milk for them pending the outcome of negotiations between school and municipal authorities. A question of legal authority has arisen, and if the Welfare Fund had not stepped into the breach there would have been a period in which 5,000 children would have suffered.

Thanks are due Lewis McIntyre, city traffic engineer, for acting so promptly on the Sun-Telegraph's suggestion that the downtown traffic signal lights be kept in operation until midnight on Sunday nights. It will help to prevent traffic jams such as have occurred on several Sunday nights recently after the lights were turned off.

Secretary of Highways Sam Lewis announces that nearly 1,300 miles of state highway construction is under way in Pennsylvania. The time will soon arrive when unimproved highways will be scarcer than paved ones. And yet there is something to be said in favor of dirt roads. They lead to parts of the state that have not been spoiled by tourists. And what are persons fond of hiking going to do when all the highways are paved and consequently are much used by motorists?

Trifles—Light as Summer Love

Beach pajamas on a woman are merely the triumph of moral courage and feminism over vanity.

Love is not a virtue but a dispensation. A man smokes because he wants to; he drinks because he likes to, but no man ever fell in love if he could possibly help it.

You can tell the age of a salmon by the number of rings on its scales, says a paragrapher. But you can't tell the age of a modern woman by the number of wedding rings in her safety vault.

Intuition teaches the most stupid woman more about love in a single moment than the most brilliant man learns in a whole lifetime of experience.

Eve was just an old-fashioned wife, and probably never would have gotten into that fatal affair with the serpent if she hadn't been so bored and lonesome while Adam was off somewhere amusing himself.

To love a modern girl is a liberal education for any man; to love a grass-widow is a post-graduate course.

In some states there appears to be far more chance of escape for a burglar or a murderer than for a married man.

The love that will permit a man to wait 24 hours before patching up a quarrel with a woman is already in the cold storage vault.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Sure of Himself

The man who is sure of himself
can go
Unbowed by the burden of any woe.
He can march without harm
In the teeth of the storm
And pay no toll to the winds that blow.

For, sure of himself, he can then be sure
No ills are too great for a heart
that is pure,
Nor can life map out
Ways so dark with doubt
That a steadfast spirit can not endure.

The man who is sure of himself will be Erect and tranquil and proud and free,
With a strength that can meet
All the tides that beat
On the shores of time and eternity!

TITAN OF PHYSICS

By Archibald Henderson

One of the great scientific figures of the modern is Sir Ernest Rutherford. He has not only done work of vast importance himself; but he has stimulated epochal work on the part of associates and pupils. Soddy, Boler, Geiger, Mosely, will always be remembered for their contributions to science, much of which was done in association with, or under the direction of Sir Ernest Rutherford. The latter's name will always be associated with the modern scientific discovery, for so many centuries the dream of alchemists, namely, the transmutation of matter.

Ernest Rutherford was born at Nelson, in New Zealand, on August 30, 1871. The force and vigor of his inquiring mind early displayed themselves in his studies at Canterbury College, in New Zealand. At the age of 23 he won a scholarship which enabled him to go to England and work under the famous Sir J. J. Thomson, at the Cavendish Laboratory, in Cambridge.

Rutherford had one of those eager, inquiring minds which took up the newest discoveries and arrived at new results on the basis of the new discoveries. He anticipated Marconi in sending wireless messages over short distances, up to half a mile. Other subjects which early occupied his attention, eventuating in useful results, were: The motion of electrified atoms, ultra-violet light and the mysterious rays emitted by uranium salts. Following Berquerel's discovery of the uranium ray, Rutherford made careful studies in this field and showed that this strange, novel ray was not a kind of light as Berquerel erroneously imagined, but a new and important kind of force. These researches won for him the Coutts-Trotter scholarship.

At the age of 27 Rutherford, on the recommendation of Sir J. J. Thomson, was appointed professor of physics at McGill University, in Montreal. During the nine years he spent there, he made important contributions to our knowledge of thorium, the rare earth used in making gas mantles.

Frederick Soddy, who went to McGill University about this time, worked in collaboration with Rutherford. They discovered many new properties of radio-activity, and almost created a new science. They set in motion the modern study of the methods by which one element can be changed into another, such as radium into lead.

In 1907 Sir Ernest Rutherford returned to England, occupying the post of professor and director of the physical laboratories at the University of Manchester. Here he created a school of research which became world-famous, rivaling that of the famous Cavendish Laboratory at Cambridge. In 1919 Rutherford became director of the latter.

Sir Ernest Rutherford has received innumerable honors, medals and prizes. Notable among these are the Rumford and Barnard medals, and the Nobel prize for chemistry; and honorary degrees from many universities. Sir Ernest Rutherford has a rich, comprehensive outlook; and many ideas credited to other scientists have originated in his fertile and imaginative brain.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I believe in America!
America means something.
Often we forget what she means—
We get to thinking what she means—
Money and lands,
And merchandise and machinery,
And smart man power—
And we believe that we have
The world by the tail,
Because we possess an abundance
Of such assets.
But that's childish!
Other nations have had all these things,
And yet gone blooey.
If that is all that America means—
If that is all she has accomplished
Since July 7, 1776,
Then America is just an Also Ran
And she'll end like all the others.
But America does mean more
Than lands and money and power,
And she possesses something infinitely more valuable
Than merchandise and machinery,
Or even the smartest brains.
America has A VISION—
A vision of EQUALITY—
AN EQUAL CHANCE FOR ALL MEN
TO WORK AND LEARN
AND MAKE THE MOST OF THEMSELVES.
That's a great vision.
The greatest vision men have ever had—
That's a great cause.
The greatest cause for which a country
Was ever founded.
Of course we haven't achieved it—
There's no such thing as real equality
In this country . . . yet.
There never has been,
And only God knows
When there will be—
BUT WE'RE ON OUR WAY!
I BELIEVE IN AMERICA
BECAUSE SHE HAS A VISION—
BECAUSE, IN SPITE OF ALL HER STUPIDITY AND CONCEIT, HER GREEDINESS AND FEAR,
SHE'S ON HER WAY TO DECENCY
AND INTELLIGENCE AND FAIR PLAY.
Yes, I know she bluffs and pretends,
Acts smarty and passes the buck,
But still there's something fine in America;
Something those ragged soldiers
Started at Valley Forge—
Something those pitiful boys in blue and gray
Carried on at Gettysburg—
Something that stayed sane
Through the blunders of '98—
Something that shone white
Through the hell of the Argonne—
SOMETHING THAT FAT AL CAPONE
AND ALL THE POST-WAR GANG
OF PIG-EYED, POT-BELLIED PARASITES
CAN'T TAKE FOR A RIDE!
I believe in America!
She's in plenty of jams now.
But she's been in plenty
Of jams before
And she has always won through.
She has always won through.
BECAUSE YOU CAN'T KILL A VISION.
Bank on that, neighbor.
Bank on America's vision.
Never mind what she has
Or hasn't done,
Or still may do.
BANK ON WHAT SHE WANTS TO DO!
BANK ON THE VISION IN HER HEART;
BELIEVE IN THAT VISION—
FIGHT FOR IT, PRAY FOR IT,
SACRIFICE YOUR LAST BEAN FOR IT,
AND NOTHING CAN STOP HER—
AMERICA WILL WIN THROUGH!

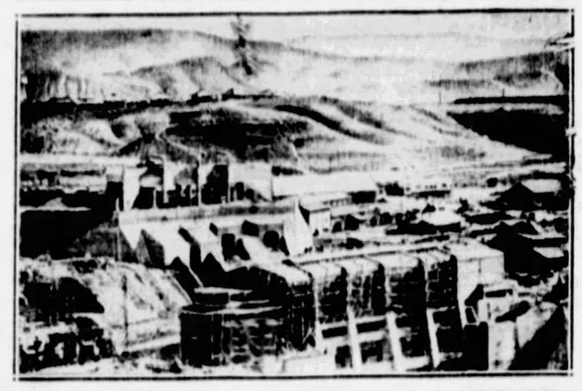
Making the Jordan Work

The Ancient River Harnessed Must Feed Its Strength to Power Houses.



A GREAT DAM ON THE JORDAN RIVER.

Old is the River Jordan in Palestine, and sacred the memories attached to its name.

And old, comparatively, is the song that you have heard so often, "Roll, Roll Jordan, Roll."

In old days Jordan rolled as it chose, sometimes rushing under the pressure of heavy waters from its own sources, and its tributary, the River Yarmuk, sometimes shallow and feeble in dry weather.

The chorus, "Roll, Jordan, Roll," has now been changed by the engineers and practical businessmen of the Zionist Movement in Palestine.

They say, "Roll, Jordan, as much as you please, but first stop a little while and do some real work."

The first part of the Palestine hydro-electric plan started five years ago, is now almost completed.

Above you see the dam built to store the waters of the Jordan, and power houses that will use the river's energy to produce light and power for Zionist homes and industrial enterprises.

Because of its erratic flow, because the Jordan and its tributary, the River Yarmuk, vary so greatly in their supply of power, enormous reservoirs have been constructed to hold surplus waters in flood times and keep the supply of energy as nearly as possible even.

The world is becoming practical. We go up toward heaven into the air, not to build a Tower of Babylon to reach the sky, but to bring down nitrogen to use as fertilizers, to study air currents for our flying machines, or test and study the mysterious "cosmic rays" that bombard the earth, coming through space billions of miles.

Niagara once meant only BEAUTY. Now it means POWER to light cities, far away, and gigantic fortunes for those that were fortunate enough in some mysterious way to make that waterfall their own "private property."

However, it is all for the best. This earth was provided as residence upon which human beings may find happiness, while waiting, let us hope, for greater happiness hereafter.

Whatever can be done with Niagara, the Jordan, the power of the tides and of the sun to make men happier, richer, more contented, is undoubtedly a part of the original plan.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 11.—With members of my household week-ending in the country, the servants taking a night out and rain threatening I thought up out of my own head of remaining indoors and preparing a dinner for myself. Then to bed and a book. Just a quiet evening at home.

No place is so cheerful as a kitchen in activity nor so gloomy deserted. I hurried to get the coffee going. That would brighten things. You know, turn on the gas, touch a match, pss-t, and there you are. But I couldn't find the coffee, coffee pot or matches.

So I telephoned my wife. "Where," I inquired a shade querulously, "is the coffee?" She replied it was in the metal container plainly marked "Coffee." And added: "I suppose you have been looking for it under the piano." After that I couldn't ask about the coffee pot and matches.

Anyway it struck me one could make coffee quicker in a skillet. I only wanted a single cup. Lighting the gas stove with a pocket lighter I got the coffee started and began to explore the ice box. There were raisins, a gift tin of pate de foie gras, cold meats and a big bright yellow slice of cheese.

The cheese gave me an inspiration. Give up? A Welsh rabbit. That, girls, is a dish. Charlie Journal once gave me his famous recipe, but I forgot it. But all one needs to do is to melt the cheese and serve it piping hot. Any silly could do that.

In lieu of a chafing dish, I got out another skillet. We are skillet people and have two. I dropped the whole hunk of cheese in the skillet and set it over another flame next to the coffee. Then I strolled into another part of the house to glance over the evening papers.

After about 10 minutes—not over 12 Rocky Mountain time—I went back into the kitchen to see how things moved along. The coffee had simmered down to so much dry rust, but the cheese was acting girlish, flipping, flopping and blowing great big bubbles.

It seemed to me it was ready to serve, so I got a plate, put it on the kitchen table and returned for the skillet, but by this time the cheese was cutting a caper. It began to pop like hot grease, landing on my bare arms and in my face and hair. But no Welsh rabbit can bulldoze me. I wasn't reared 34 miles from the James boys for nothing. I'm a hard case. Throwing an old apron over my head and using a dust pan as a shield I rushed right in and turned off the gas. Sometimes I don't know my own strength.

When you think of it, Welsh rabbit is for sissies. Every night club gigolo winds up the evening with one. So I tossed it away. What a real he-man needs is meat—and lots of it. There was a platter of cold cuts on ice and I decided to make a meal of it. Topping off with a chilled bottle of sparkling ginger ale. Swigging right from the bottle—glug, glug, glug.

The meat was on the table and as soon as I slipped the tin cap off the ginger ale—boy, would I have myself a party! And that tin cap is why all my nails are broken off, my hands scratched up, to say nothing of a wrenched back, a broken chair, a soiled rug and a split lip. There wasn't a bottle opener in the place. I heard about slipping caps off between notches on radiators. There is no use going into details, but that's how I got my split lip. The bottle slipped, flew up and wham.

I then got the thing fastened between the folding stepladder and heaved until something inside my back snappd right where my suspenders crossed. After that I couldn't straighten up. Crawling into the bathroom I wrapped a towel around the top of the bottle and began to wrestle, rolling from room to room until exhausted, and then I'd sit up weakly on the floor and pluck at it wanly with my finger nails. Once I tried my teeth and both plates sailed across the room, folding up my face like an accordion.

In the meantime the dogs had entered into the spirit of the merry making and to make things tougher gobbled the meat off the plate. I gave up opening the bottle at last and took another look into the ice box. Back in a corner was a dish of cold peas. That made everything perfectly dandy. Deep down in my heart I'm a vegetarian anyway.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You don't like to have attention directed to your faults.

You are angered when someone sees through your veneer and exposes in speech or written word your inner self.

You think such persons are far from perfection themselves.

In this deduction you are right for none comes close to flawless.

But the fact that you are aroused or disturbed by what you see in print or by what is said of you directly, indicates that you know wherein you fail to live up to your pretensions.

You should not be ashamed of your deficiencies to the degree that you have an emotional disturbance when someone discovers your weaknesses.

The question is, "why do you allow so many things to remain in your life when you want them to be hidden?"

You cannot live over the past, but you can control the present and future.

There is comfort in the realization that you have overcome your most flagrant weaknesses.

And you will have more self respect when you have mastered them.
